One Killed, Two May Lie, Following Buena Park Crash

ATTRIBUTE 1ST TRAFFIC DEATH TO HIGH SPEED

High speed is attributed as the cause of a terrific accident in Buena Park last night in which one Los Angeles youth was killed, two perhaps fatally injured and three more slightly hurt, caused when a light delivery truck failed to make the turn from Manchester boulevard to Artesia boulevard and struck a telephone pole.

The death of Steve DeGroot, 18, 3750 Crocker street, Los Angeles, was the first traffic fatality of the year in Orange county. Three other wrecks occurred in the county yesterday, in which four persons were hurt.

Young DeGroot, riding with five other boys in a Los Angeles newspaper delivery truck driven by Beldon Carlton Clark, 18, 318 East Ninety-ninth street, Los Angeles, was thrown clear of the wreck and received a fractured skull. He died about 11:30 p. m. in three hours after the accident, in the Fullerton General Hospital. The body was taken to the Seale Funeral home in Fullerton and inquest arrangements are being postponed by Coroner Earl Abbey pending the recovery of the two boys near death in hospitals.

Harold Haller, 17, 325 Magnolia avenue, Gardena, was taken to the Orange County hospital and transferred to St. Joseph's hospital this morning, suffering from lacerations and compound fracture of the arm, cuts and abrasions on the face and head and concussion. He is not expected to recover. Howard Kaayee, 18, 871 East Seventy-seventh street, Los Angeles, is near death in the Fullerton hospital with concussion and a fractured arm.

Albert DeGroot, 17, brother of the dead boy, Willard Atkins and Clark received minor injuries and were not taken to hospitals. J. H. Tremler, Fullerton officer, heard the crash from a distance of more than four miles and speeded to the police station to get a report over the telephone. It was reported. It was believed that the boys had been soliciting for the newspaper in Orange county and were returning to their homes. The truck was demolished.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Adams, Pasadena, received injuries at 12:30 a. m. yesterday when their car and a machine driven by Edward K. Moore, 22, Santa Ana, collided at Seventeenth and Main streets. Moore said he was turning into a service station when Adams swerved his car and caused the collision.

Mrs. C. S. Kendall, 311 Cypress street, received a slight face injury at 2 p. m. yesterday when car driven by her husband and O. S. Hunt, 29, Garden Grove, collided at Mabury and Fourth streets.

Jim Bain, 47, Los Angeles, walking across Main street at the intersection of Cubbon street, was slightly hurt at 3:50 p. m. yesterday when struck by a car driven by James D. Newman, 20, 1230 South Van Ness street. Bain refused medical attention and was taken away by friends.

BARTER EXCHANGE IS URGED BY RENO

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(UP)—A bartering exchange to handle products of farmers and industrial labor was urged by Milo Reno, leader of the farm holiday movement today. He will address the Farmer-Labor political convention at Cooper Union tonight.

"Laborers whose products the farmers want go idle and the farmers' produce goes to waste," Reno said. "The railroads aren't to blame. The trouble is the medium of exchange."

He hailed New York's mayor, Fiorello H. La Guardia as the best possible candidate of a third party for the presidency.

YEAR DEFICIT ON JUNE 30 TO BE 7 BILLIONS

He told them, in return, that he wanted appropriated an additional $1,166,000,000 at this session of congress for immediate use to continue the CWA after Feb. 15; to aid home loan banks; and to re-institute farm loan system.

At the White House conference last Monday night, Mr. Roosevelt informed Democratic congressional leaders that he wanted from this session an appropriation of $2,000,000,000 of emergency funds for use in the next fiscal year. He estimates $600,000,000 for relief; $500,000,000 for public works; $500,000,000 for the RFC; $200,000,000 for the civilian conservation corps; and $100,000,000 for farm credit and home loan aid.

Asks Lump Sum
The president asked the Democratic leaders for a lump sum appropriation. Failing that, he wanted authority to shift itemized allotments from one avenue of expenditure to another. He feels, for instance, that relief needs in the next fiscal year may vary between $200,000,000 and $800,000,000 and does not want to be tied to a specific sum. The rather mysterious $500,000,000 for the RFC is to be earmarked, the United Press understands, to general emergency needs.

This budget takes no account of additional taxes which may be levied at this session. If congress puts them on—and it must be remembered that an election impends—the proceeds will be so much velvet, to use the language of a high authority. Neither is the possibility of war debts reckoned in the totals. But the government will continue to seek its due from Europe.

Against expenditures for this fiscal year is estimated revenue of $2,259,938,756, considerably more than had been expected. Revenue for the next fiscal year is estimated to be $3,874,665,476.

The economy bill is to remain unchanged except for legislation making return of 5 per cent pay federal employees' 15 per cent pay and an amendment exempting army, navy and marine corps personnel from the prohibition against auto-

WILL ROGERS SAYS:

BEVERLY HILLS, Jan. 4. (To the Editor of The Register): That Roosevelt handled that Congress yesterday just like a mother would a fretting baby. Just when any other mother would have told it to hush, and be a good baby, and not cry, he didn't tell 'em a single thing to do. Just slipped 'em all a piece of candy (the little black Republican babies along with the white ones) and he left 'em feeling that mother had confidence in 'em. And they were all just tickled to death, rolling on the floor, with their toes in their mouth and goo-gooing at each other.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

matic increases in compensation upon promotion to a higher rank.

Public Debt
The overall deficit figure represents the net increase in public debt estimated for June 30, 1934, when the fiscal year ends. There is in addition $488,171,500 allocated to public debt retirement.

Roosevelt said the aggregate of expenditures in this fiscal year and the next would be $16,529,805,667 and that on June 30, 1935 the national debt would be swollen to the unprecedented figure of $31,834,000,000. He promised then to balance the budget within federal income.

On December 31 last the public debt was $23,518,750,735.55. The peak debt of public debt so far was on August 31, 1919 when it reached $26,596,761,648.01.

The financial status and future of the recovery program in brief: is a deficit of upwards of $7,000,000,000 in this fiscal year and an increase of about $2,000,000,000 in the debt in the next fiscal year.

The budget balancing program thereafter carries the administration into the fiscal year 1935-36 which will end on June 30 of the latter year. Four months later will take place the next presidential election.

The president considers today's message the most brutally frank budget ever presented to an American congress, but is said by his intimates to be pleased with the general budgetary showing.

Expenses Cut
It is remarked that the White House with considerable satisfaction that comparison of the last Hoover budget with this first of the Roosevelt administration shows general expenses of the government have been cut $684,913,167 below general federal expenses in the last year of Mr. Hoover's regime. This is exclusive of recovery expenditures.

Mr. Roosevelt is not averted nor frightened by the need to borrow $10,000,000,000 in the next six months. Of this sum, $6,000,000,000 will be new money and $4,000,000,000 will be to retire maturing government obligations. The president is confident the government's credit is sound and will remain so despite the staggering nature of the recovery bill.

The making of the figures which in the budget message tell the story of emergency expenditures by the administration is almost beyond comprehension. Some idea may be had from the fact that if a spending spree had been begun at the birth of Christ and continued at the rate of $1 a minute to the present day, the total outlay would be about $1,000,000,000.

At the rate of $10 a minute it would be possible in 1934 year to spend approximately the $10,569,967,967 which Mr. Roosevelt informed congress today would be the outlay of the federal government in the fiscal year ending June 30.

Expenditures
Expenditures for the fiscal year 1934-35 are estimated at $5,900,798,700—an aggregate of $16,529,805,667 for the two fiscal periods. Offset against this, at least potentially, is $5,461,989,273 representing the book value of collateral aid as security for loans advanced by the government. Against the $7,309,068,211 deficit for this fiscal year is held loan collateral valued at $3,558,516,139.

After stating the $31,000,000,000 debt to be accumulated by June 30, 1935, the president made his bid for public confidence as follows:

"It is my belief that so far as we can make estimates with our present knowledge, the government should seek to hold the total debt within this amount."

"Furthermore, the government during the balance of this calendar year should plan to bring its 1936 expenditures, including recovery and relief, within the revenues expected in the fiscal year 1936. We should plan to have a definitely balanced budget for the third year of recovery and from that time on seek a continuing reduction of the national debt."

The only indication of the manner in which the president intends to find $10,000,000,000 in the next six months is in his own language that "we shall have to borrow." That apparently excludes for this operation either the issue of treasury notes or seizure of gold held by federal reserve banks in connection with dollar stabilization.

DEBATE OPENED ON LIQUOR TAX BILL IN HOUSE

consideration. A bloc of Republicans was determined to make an issue of a proposal to increase by $6 a gallon the tax on imported champagne. An effort was made yesterday in the ways and means committee to amend the bill with a provision. It was defeated by a straight party vote, with the Republican minority voting for it. They argued that the doubled rate would help the domestic champagne industry.

The liquor tax measure carries a $2 a gallon tax on distilled spirits, taxes of 10 to 40 cents on wines under 24 per cent alcoholic content and a flat $5 a barrel tax on beer. In addition, it imposes occupational taxes and an extra levy of 30 cents on blended whiskeys. Ways and means committee members estimated that the whiskey tax would raise $300,000,000, the beer tax $160,000,000, and the remaining provisions, combined with present import duties, produce $90,000,000.

The committee, in its report to the House, said the proposed rates "will return the maximum amount of revenue without incurring the danger of perpetuating illegal liquor traffic by excessive rates." The bill as reported out also carries a $2 a gallon tax on imported perfumes containing distilled spirits, and permits a drawback up to $2 a gallon on distillates exported from the country. The latter provision is designed to stimulate liquor exports.

CITRUS MAN GETS CHULA VISTA JOB

FULLERTON, Jan. 4.—C. A. Butler, manager of the Yorba Linda Citrus association packing house for the past year, is giving up that position to take over the management of the Chula Vista lemon house, near San Diego. Mr. and Mrs. Butler and their children, who reside on Hillcrest, Fullerton, plan to move the last of the month.

According to reports from the Yorba Linda packinghouse, A. A. Adams, foreman of the plant, will take Butler's place there. Butler took over the management a year ago when Phil Damon resigned.

played H. John Eastman, another descendant, by the month to make surveys of the well as it was drilled. He also testified that he had employed R. H. Garrison as an engineer to handle the well and supplied him with daily reports relative to the depth, angle and direction of the wells.

From this data Combs said Garrison made graphs and charts which he turned over to Combs. Friends Combs, following his father on the stand, testified that these graphs and charts later were destroyed by his father.

Garrison called on the stand yesterday, on advice of his attorney John T. Houser, refused to answer any questions concerning his connection with the well. He had never been employed in the Huntington Beach oil fields. This refusal was based on the statement that it might tend to incriminate him.

When Attorney Roland Swaffield objected to his refusal to answer on the grounds that selection of immunity is not within the province of the witness unless there is sufficient cause which is the court's jurisdiction to determine. Houser declared there was sufficient cause. He pointed out that in the complaint of which Garrison had been named as co-defendant there was indication that he was accused of grand theft of state oil.

H. John Eastman, who made surveys of the wells was on the witness stand practically all the morning session today.

Additional indications that the Terno company and the state had compromised their difficulties was given when City Attorney Ray Oversacker of Huntington Beach recalled E. B. Combs to the stand and asked him the direct question. Swaffield for the Terno company and L. G. Campbell of the State Attorney General's office were successful in preventing answering of the question.

Late yesterday the City of Huntington Beach filed a cross complaint seeking to restrain the attorney general from filing further suits against oil operators similar to that against the Terno company until the case now pending is settled.

The suit was filed by L. W. Blodget and George Bush, special counsel for the City of Huntington Beach.

Meets at noon to receive budget message. Considers $550,000,000 liquor tax bill. Ways and means committee meets in executive session on general tax revision.

ton Beach charging that the state has no right to the tideland oil.

"The state owns the tidelands only in trust for the people and then only for the purposes of commerce, fishing and navigation" the complaint alleged. It also asserted that the oil under the tidelands is "free to anyone who can locate it, provided he commences to drill his well on his own land."

The State Division of Lands, according to the complaint, has threatened to bring suit against every property owner within 300 feet of the tidelands who may start to drill for oil and declared "the state will not finish any suit but instead will compromise the cases because the operators are financially unable to fight back."

"By this system of harassing operators the state is forcing compromises and demanding exorbitant royalties."

DR. W. F. DEXTER MAY SEEK POST IN U. S. SENATE

"I have been urged by thousands of my friends for the past 10 years to enter public life," he said. "I have been on leave from Whittier college since September 1 and I have just submitted my resignation to take effect next September 1. There are three things I can do: enter public life, make another educational connection, or go into private business."

"I have been trying to decide whether to make the race against Senator Johnson. My decision will be reached, of course, after a number of conferences. I haven't yet had the conferences I'd like with Republican leaders in the south, but the matter should be decided in a month, if not in the next 10 days. If I decide to run, it will be on a platform liberal enough for progress and conservative enough for stability."

Dr. Dexter is 47 years old and has been head of Whittier college for 10 years. He is district governor of the Lions club, for the California, Nevada and Hawaii district. He has a wife and an 18-year-old son.

FORMER RESIDENT ESCAPES IN FLOOD

Santa Ana friends of the Rev. W. L. H. Benton, former rector of the Church of the Messiah of this city, now of the Episcopal church in La Crescenta, were informed today that he and members of his family were uninjured and suffered no property damage in the recent flood.

Telephone service was disrupted and it was impossible to get in touch with the family until yesterday, when Mrs. Charles Riggs was able to talk with Mrs. Benton, who said conditions in the area were terrible. Mrs. Myrtle Adams, La Crescenta Valley Red Cross worker, who lost her life in the flood, was a personal friend of the Benton family.

Believed to be out of danger from critical injuries received in an accident near the Sycamore Inn on Valley boulevard last week end, Captain Albert Rolling, mining engineer and retired army officer, who lives at South Main and Bishop streets, is recovering in the San Antonio Hospital in Upland.

According to reports received here, Capt. Rolling was walking across the highway when struck by a car, reported to be driven by the superintendent of schools of Imperial Valley. He was rushed to the hospital where it was feared he might die.

Elisardo Godinez, serving a 150 day sentence in the county jail for possession of intoxicating liquor, paid the $200 balance of his fine yesterday and was released.

Albert M. Turney, Jr., 25, Los Angeles, entered the county jail yesterday to serve a five day sentence for violation of the Motor Vehicle act, imposed by Judge D. J. Dodge of Costa Mesa.

Antonio Pargo, charged with a statutory offense, was arraigned before Judge Kenneth Morrison yesterday and had his preliminary hearing set for January 10 at 9 a. m. Bail was set at $3000, which he posted yesterday.

R. J. McCormick, who posted a $15 bail bond last weekend on a drunkenness charge, failed to appear in police court yesterday. A fine of $15 was levied and the bond forfeited.

GOLDFISH FOUND IN DITCH REDMOND, Ore. (UP)—A highly-colored gold fish six inches long was found in an irrigation ditch near here by Mrs. C. A. Ordway. No explanation as to how it got there was available. The fish, put in a bowl, seemed frightened and darted about, showing it had been in wild state some time.

Annual District Meetings Held By Avocado Growers

Three annual meetings with election of officers will be held this week by avocado growers of Orange county. It was announced today by officials of the Calavo Growers' exchange.

Growers of the Yorba Linda, Fullerton, Placentia and neighboring areas will meet tomorrow at 2 p. m. in Room 411, Chapman building, Fullerton.

La Habra district growers will meet at 7:30 o'clock next Monday night at the Washington school in La Habra.

The Santa Ana, Tustin and Orange district meeting was scheduled to be held this afternoon at the San Joaquin ranch in Tustin.

Future avocado marketing outlook and the 1933 marketing period will be discussed at the district meetings by George B. Hodgkin, general manager of the growers' exchange. He also will discuss the recent code conference held in Santa Ana.

Growers will elect 1934 directors at each of the meetings. Both member and non-member growers were invited to attend the district meetings, which were expected to draw large attendances.

Maxey Funeral To Be Held Saturday

Mrs. Jennett Maxey, 66, mother of Mrs. W. A. Cray of Santa Ana, died in Los Angeles yesterday following an extended illness.

She also is survived by her husband, W. F. Maxey, and a son, Yule Maxey, of North Hollywood. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the Harrell and Brown funeral home, 116 West Seventeenth street, with the Rev. Henry E. Schrock, minister of the First Congregational church, officiating.

Interment will be made in Fairhaven cemetery.

Close Reid's Cafe For Alterations

Reid's cafe, on Fourth street near Fourth and Main, will be reopened within one or two weeks after alterations and changes have been made in the building, it was learned today.

The rear of the cafe is being extended to make it possible for larger groups to hold dinner meetings in the establishment. Five men were busy today making the alterations. H. O. Reid is proprietor of the cafe.

JOINT HIGHWAY DISTRICT TO DISBAND SOON

Completion of the final contract on Ortega highway is scheduled for early in February according to information released yesterday following a meeting of Joint Highway District 15. When these contracts have been completed the district will disband it was said.

Directors of the district met yesterday and after receiving reports of progress on the contract for surfacing and completion of the bridge between San Juan Capistrano and Lake Elsinore, paid outstanding bills and adjourned until the next monthly meeting which probably will be the final session of the board.

The work of surfacing the entire route will be completed within a few weeks and the bridge job also will be completed at that time. The recent heavy rains delayed the work considerably as well as causing extra work on the bridge through washing out a culvert on the San Juan Capistrano side and temporarily closing the road. Oiling of the highway has been completed and the road was opened to traffic Saturday only to be closed by the washout Sunday.

HISTORICAL GROUP TO NAME OFFICERS

Annual meeting of the Orange County Historical society will be held at the Bowers Memorial Museum, 2019 North Main street, tomorrow night, at 7:30 o'clock. It was announced today by S. M. Davis, secretary of the organization.

Election of directors who will serve for the ensuing year and transaction of business will feature the annual meeting. Dr. C. D. Ball, president, will preside at the meeting.

Local Briefs

Edward W. Dahl, contractor and engineer and former street superintendent of Santa Ana, has been appointed field superintendent of the All-American canal by the secretary of the interior. It was learned today. Dahl will have his headquarters at Yuma, Ariz.

BAD CHECK PASSED ON MATTRESS FIRM

Using the pretense of ordering a mattress and box spring, a man giving the name of James Sheridan of Fullerton succeeded in passing a fictitious check for $21 and receiving $4 in change from the Santa Ana Mattress company, 411 East Fourth street, police were notified yesterday.

Jack Patterson of the mattress concern said the man who bought the materials ordered them sent to his apartment at 210 West Truslow street, Fullerton, to be delivered on Christmas. He tendered a check on the Bank of America in Fullerton, made by H. Klen, and received the $4 change. When the mattress was delivered, there was no apartment at that address.

Sheridan was described as weighing 165 pounds, being 30 years of age and 6 feet 1 inch tall.

BENEFIT TICKET SALE HELD RACKET

Describing the solicitation for sale of benefit tickets in Santa Ana by representatives of the Municipal and County Motorcycle Officers' association as a "racket," Phil N. Brown, manager of the Business Men's association of Santa Ana, today warned residents of the city against buying tickets.

Brown said a thorough check revealed that the association was not in any way affiliated with the state highway patrol or with the Orange County Peace Officers' association and that no local benefit could be derived by buying the tickets.

After activities of the representative had been curtailed in the business section, efforts were being made to solicit in the residential section of the city, Brown said.

TEXT OF PRESIDENT'S BUDGET MESSAGE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(UP)—Following is the text of President Roosevelt's budget message to Congress outlining the government's financial position:

To the Congress of the United States:

I transmit herewith the budget for the year ending June 30, 1935. It contains also estimates of receipts and expenditures for the current year ending June 30, 1934, and includes statements of the financial operations or status of all governmental agencies, including the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The estimates herein given and included in the budget have to do with general and special funds—the government's money. They do not relate to trust and contributed funds, which are not government money, except where expressly referred to as such.

Financial Position

In my annual message to the Congress I have already summarized the problems presented by the deflationary forces of the depression, the paralyzed condition which affected the banking system, business, agriculture, transportation, and indeed, the whole orderly continuation of the nation's social and economic system.

I have outlined the steps taken since last March for the resumption of normal activities and the restoration of the credit of the Government.

Of necessity these many measures have caused spending by the government far in excess of the income of the government.

The results of expenditures already made show themselves in concrete form in better prices for farm commodities, in renewed business activity, in increased employment, in reopening of banks, and in well-organized relief.

THE CURRENT FISCAL YEAR

(Ending June 30, 1934)

Exclusive of debt retirement of $488,171,000 for this year, budget estimates of expenditures, including operating expenses of the regular government establishments and also all expenditures which may be broadly classed as caused by the necessity for recovery from the depression will amount this year (and June 30, 1934) to $9,408,066,967.

This total falls in broad terms into the following classifications:

Expenditures for fiscal year ending June 30, 1934.

General:

Departmental, $2,999,116,200.
Legislative, $1,718,500.
Independent establishments, $616,857,067.
Total, $5,333,691,767.
Less public debt retirements, $488,171,000.
Total, general, $2,045,520,767.

Emergency:

Public works administration, $1,677,190,800.
Agricultural adjustment administration, $103,250,000.
Farm credit administration, $40,000,000.
Emergency conservation work, $241,705,600.
Reconstruction Finance Corporation, $2,969,740,300.
Tennessee Valley authority, $19,000,000.
Federal land banks, $52,350,000.
Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, $150,000,000.
National Industrial Recovery Administration, $4,350,000.
Total, emergency, $6,557,486,700.
Total, general and emergency, less public debt retirements, $9,408,066,967.

As against these expenditures, which have either been appropriated for or for which appropriations are asked, the estimated receipts for this fiscal year (ending June 30, 1934) are $8,259,888,756.

On this basis, including, however, certain additional expenditures for 1934 which are not included in the budget estimates but which I believe to be necessary and amounting to $1,166,000, as shown in a subsequent table herein, the excess of expenditures over receipts will be $7,309,068,211. Interest charges on the borrowings in excess of budget estimates will slightly increase this figure.

Public Debt

On the basis of these estimates, the public debt, in the strict sense of the term, at the expiration of this fiscal year will therefore amount to approximately $20,847,000,000, or an increase as shown above of $7,309,068,211.

However, as against this increase in the total debt figure, it is right to point out that the various governmental agencies have loans outstanding with a book value of $3,558,516,189 against which collateral or assets have been pledged.

In order to make clear to the Congress what our borrowing problem is for the next six months, permit me to remind you that we shall have to borrow approximately six billion dollars of new money and, in addition, four billion dollars to meet maturities of a like amount.

THE FISCAL YEAR 1935

(Ending June 30, 1935)

The budget estimates of expenditures, exclusive of debt retirement, amount to $12,763,800 and exclusive also of such sum as may be necessary for new and extraordinary recovery purposes, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1935, amount to $2,969,740,300.

Again summarizing the main headings of these expenditures they fall into the following items:

Expenditures for fiscal year ending June 30, 1935.

General:

Departmental, $3,202,074,500.
Legislative, $1,734,500.
Independent establishments, $642,466,600.
Less public debt retirements, $252,763,800.
Total, general, $3,287,512,000.
Emergency:

Public Works Administration, $1,683,853,100.
Agricultural Adjustment Administration, $103,000,000.
Emergency conservation work, $241,705,600.
Reconstruction Finance Corporation, $2,969,740,300.
Tennessee Valley authority, $19,000,000.
Federal land banks, $52,350,000.
Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, $150,000,000.
National Industrial Recovery Administration, $4,350,000.
Total, emergency, $6,557,486,700.
Total, general and emergency, less public debt retirements, $9,408,066,967.

As against these expenditures, which have either been appropriated for or for which appropriations are asked, the estimated receipts for this fiscal year (ending June 30, 1934) are $8,259,888,756.

As against these expenditures, which have either been appropriated for or for which appropriations are asked, the estimated receipts for this fiscal year (ending June 30, 1934) are $8,259,888,756.

On this basis, including, however, certain additional expenditures for 1934 which are not included in the budget estimates but which I believe to be necessary and amounting to $1,166,000, as shown in a subsequent table herein, the excess of expenditures over receipts will be $7,309,068,211. Interest charges on the borrowings in excess of budget estimates will slightly increase this figure.

Public Debt

On the basis of these estimates, the public debt, in the strict sense of the term, at the expiration of this fiscal year will therefore amount to approximately $20,847,000,000, or an increase as shown above of $7,309,068,211.

However, as against this increase in the total debt figure, it is right to point out that the various governmental agencies have loans outstanding with a book value of $3,558,516,189 against which collateral or assets have been pledged.

In order to make clear to the Congress what our borrowing problem is for the next six months, permit me to remind you that we shall have to borrow approximately six billion dollars of new money and, in addition, four billion dollars to meet maturities of a like amount.

SURGEON TALKS ON MARVELS OF HUMAN BODY

Speaking on the subject, "God and You—Marvels of the Human Body," Dr. Arthur L. Brown, surgeon and lecturer, addressed a large audience in Ebell club-house auditorium last evening. He is conducting a series, to conclude Sunday, under the auspices of Calvary church of which the Rev. Frank E. Lindgren is pastor.

"The Bible has much to say about the human body," stated Dr. Brown. "Many of the ideas expressed are contrary to the accepted belief of the day in which they were written, yet are in accord with modern scientific knowledge. This is proof that God's thoughts—not man's—were recorded."

Dr. Brown cited the early belief that air circulating through the body was the sustainer of life, in spite of which one of the earliest Scriptures states that "the life of the flesh is in the blood."

The body is made up of something like 25,000,000,000 cells, all of them specialists in some line. The skin cells, for example, perform the function of protection against germs. They act as a signboard, indicating fever and other abnormal conditions in the body. They serve as an umbrella, protecting against sun and weather. They act as thermometer, thermostat, and heat regulation.

Through the function of the body temperature normally remains unchanged though the individual may pass through extremes of heat and cold.

With a subtle thread of humor running through his address, Dr. Brown drew upon his experiences as a physician and surgeon for many incidents of the remarkable performance of the cells of the human body.

"These amazing things could not happen by chance," said Dr. Brown in conclusion. "Back of them is a design, and where there is a design there is a Designer. Our bodies are truly wonderful; they are the Temple of the Holy Spirit."

"God not only created our bodies—He redeemed them. Are we using them for the glory of God?" Tonight at 7:30, Dr. Brown will speak on the subject, "The Challenge to God—Who Wins?" This address will be illustrated. The portion of the service between 8 and 9 will be broadcast over KREG.

Tomorrow night, Dr. Brown will deliver his most popular address, "Men, Monkeys, and Missing Links." Formerly a believer in Evolution and a student under the famous Darwinian theory, Dr. Brown is peculiarly fitted to discuss the subject.

All addresses are given in Ebell club auditorium, 625 French street.

Following organization of the board, elders elected T. D. Knights chairman of that body and deacons elected Dick Cashen as their chairman.

The program at the dinner meeting was as follows: Invocation, C. E. Phillips; solos by Frank Pierce, opening of business meeting with prayer by T. D. Knights; treasurer's report by J. A. The pastor's report, made by the Rev. Walter S. Buchanan, revealed that there had been 118 additions to the church during the year, and that the membership now totaled 901. He declared the church has the program for the world that is the only way out of its troubles and difficulties. He urged the recognition of Sunday as God's day, stressed the importance of Christian fellowship, and urged a greater participation in the program of the church.

A short in-memoriam service was held for members of the church who have died during the past year, closing with prayer by A. W. Gerrard.

In recognition of her work with the church and as head of the Ladies' Aid society for 20 years, a bouquet of roses was presented on behalf of the official board to Mrs. T. D. Knights by Mitchell Haskell, chairman.

Two boys with a yearning for radio parts are sorry now they yielded to temptation and stole two radios, a B battery eliminator and set of earphones from the home of W. R. Aldrich, 316 South Flower street.

Aldrich reported to police Wednesday that the radio equipment had been taken the night before. Several youths in the neighborhood were questioned and two lads 13 and 15, were finally located who admitted the theft of the parts, which belonged to Raymond Weichell, grandson of Aldrich.

The boys were turned over to juvenile authorities last night.

ADOLPH BYRD ON FLIGHT OVER BERGS

ON BOARD S. S. JACOB RUPPERT, EN ROUTE TO ANTARCTICA, Jan. 4.—(Via Mackay Radio)—(UP)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd has flown over 200,000 miles of territory in two dangerous seaplane flights and remarked them as part of the Pacific ocean.

In the second flight, yesterday, Byrd flew along the 117th meridian of longitude to 72.30 degrees south latitude. He covered this time by observation about 50,000 square miles. As on his first flight, two weeks ago, he found that what was marked as ice covered land was ocean.

Byrd left the water from a lake in the ice during a light snow and in unfavorable weather generally.

On his flight, of 2 hours 47 minutes duration, he passed an iceberg which he estimated as 25 miles long and 4 miles wide.

REPUBLICANS GOVERNOR ACTS PLAN ATTACK TO SAVE GREEN UPON MESSAGE FROM HANGING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(UP)—President Roosevelt's declaration concerning a stronger tie between the legislative and executive branches of the government was seized upon today as the chief point of Republican attack upon the President's annual message to Congress.

While a non-partisan spirit of co-operation in pushing through recovery measures, was indicated as Congress convened, some Republican leaders found something about which to express themselves in Mr. Roosevelt's closing words.

Senate Minority Leader McNary likened the President's statement to a repeal of the Constitution.

Mr. Roosevelt's reference to the "strong and permanent tie" between the legislative and executive branches added that, while the Constitution wisely declared a separation, "the impulse of common sense declares a union."

The President's words probably will be recalled later in the session in opposition to any program for vesting in the White House treaty-making powers heretofore reserved to the Senate.

Majority Leader Robinson has said that the Senate may best upon Mr. Roosevelt the right to make reciprocal tariff treaties and put them into effect without Senate ratification.

The Senate was to meet at noon today to permit the introduction of bills, among which will be the plan for redistribution of wealth as conceived by Senator Long, Democrat, Louisiana. Long wants pensions of $30 a month for persons of 60, with the money raised by taxes against the wealthy.

There was a possibility that the Senate, marking time until the House sends over the liquor tax bill, would adjourn until next week.

Several Senators have speeches which have been forming in their minds for recent weeks. Senator Wagner, Democrat, New York, plans a speech on the NRA, preliminary to introduction of legislation to make the national labor board, of which he is chairman, a permanent institution. Senator Dickinson, Republican, Iowa, plans attacks upon the NRA.

SCHOOL DOCTOR THANKS CLUB FOR GLASSES

Commendation for the efforts of the Orange County Breakfast club in furnishing glasses for children in schools of Orange county whose parents are unable to furnish them was expressed in a letter to the club from Dr. Murray Bates, Santa Ana school physician, which was read at the regular weekly meeting this morning by Guy Gilbert, chairman of a special committee appointed to see that children with defective eyesight are given glasses.

The letter from Dr. Bates pointed out that the beneficial results in the work and attitude of children in the schools already is noticeable, and that children who have needed glasses and been given them through the efforts of the club have shown an improvement in school work.

Gilbert reported that 12 pairs of glasses have been given out to children in Fullerton schools, and that many more have been distributed throughout the county.

New Year's resolutions for club members were read by C. F. Skirvan as the entertainment feature of the meeting. The resolutions furnished an amusing interlude in the program. Barney J. Koster was in charge of the program for the day.

Following the regular meeting, members of the board of directors met to outline plans for activities of the club during the coming year.

Under the sponsorship of the new HI-Hi Cafe on Highway 101 between Santa Ana and Anaheim, the popular all request prize program, broadcast daily except Sunday from KREG at 4 p. m., will give away a 75 cent dinner during each broadcast. It was announced by station officials.

All that is necessary to participate in the broadcast is to request any number to be played during the half-hour period. Everyone has the same opportunity to win the prize, whether or not their request number is played on the program and prize-winners have 48 hours in which to claim the dinner, station officials said. Further details will be announced during the broadcasts.

The new HI-Hi Cafe is under the management of Mrs. Vera Vaughn who also operates the well-known HI-Hi Tavern on the coast highway near Laguna Beach. She stated that the same variety of home-cooked foods and the best of service will be featured at the new establishment, which incorporates new equipment throughout, to all of her old friends and new ones.

The all request prize program on KREG has maintained its popularity for over two years and averages more than 25 calls during the half-hour period daily, station officials declared.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

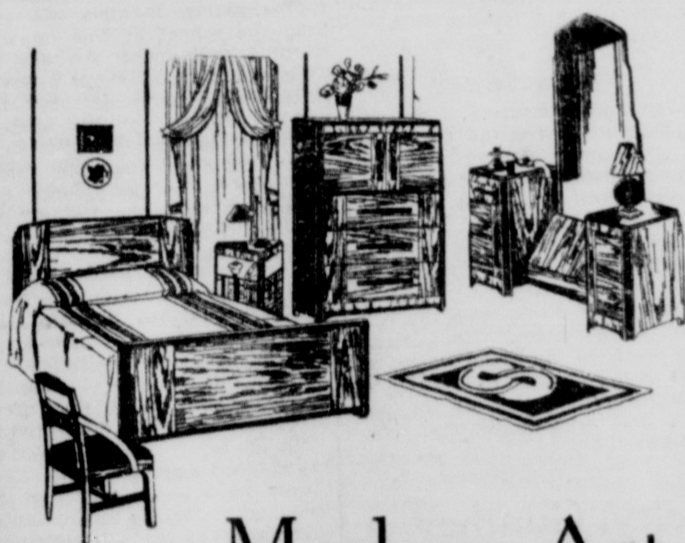

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas blows up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Recent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. © 1931 C.M. Co.

NEW SOCIAL ORDER SLATED, BELIEF OF LAGUNA BEACH MAN JUST BACK FROM CAPITAL

There is a feeling in Washington that President Roosevelt is evolving a new social order, without recourse to socialism or communism, and that there will be a redistribution of wealth through the heaping of taxes on those who amass fortunes or inherit money in large amounts, or through capital levies, according to N. E. West, of Laguna Beach, who returned home Tuesday evening from the national capital, where he represented the Laguna city council in a hearing before the board of review on the city's application for a loan of $190,000 to build the Arch Beach sewer system.

"It is the consensus of opinion of the many persons in all walks of life that I conversed with on the subject of the recovery program," West said, "that exploitation of the masses by the few is a thing of the past. Workers feel that they are to receive a percentage of the profits of the business they help to build. There is optimism everywhere. That is due partly, of course, to the fact that business is better and that more men and women are employed. Whereas a year ago business was on the down grade, in the latter part of December all lines were showing a profit and the lowest estimate I heard was 15 per cent. It ran from that up to 65 per cent."

"Confidence in the keynote of the whole situation. Men and women who did not vote for Roosevelt look upon him as their president and seem anxious for the new deal to succeed."

"It is apparent to the visitor to Washington that there is no confusion in the administration of the various new departments under the recovery program. Efficiency is found everywhere."

West arrived in Washington December 17 and was granted a hearing on the sewer matter on Friday of the same week. The board of review of the public works administration gave him more than two hours in which to present his case. When the recommendation of the board would be forwarded speedily to Secretary Ickes, who has the last word on the granting of loans. He received no inkling as to what the decision of the board would be.

REPORTS WINDBREAK DAMAGE TO SHERIFF

Hoping that prospective Christmas tree hunters will come around and get money from him to buy a tree instead of using an axe, A. J. Bowen, 810 South Birch street, has grown tired of having choice pine trees taken from a windbreak on his ranch in Costa Mesa on Tustin avenue between Twenty-First and Twenty-Second streets.

Two trees were cut down this Christmas and one the year before. Bowen said that the loss of the trees from 8 to 10 feet tall, was hard on the windbreak and caused considerable trouble and expense in replacing. Sheriff's officers were told of the tree-cutting.

DIVERTING 500 SECOND FEET WATER ON CONE

The Water Conservation association is now diverting in excess of 500 second feet of water from the Santa Ana river onto the debris cone through the 12 miles of the new system of main canal and lateral ditches constructed during the past year and a half. It was announced today by Francis Cuttle, of Riverside.

"Five hundred second feet is equal to 1000 acre feet every 24 hours," the statement said. "At the lowest price for irrigating water during the past season in this locality, which was about $3 per acre foot, it will be seen that the value of this water, which would otherwise be wasted, is $3000 daily. And, while this amount of water is being diverted on the debris cone of the upper Santa Ana river, there is also passing Chapman avenue bridge in Orange county 500 second feet; this latter amount is being lost into the Pacific ocean."

"This is a fine opportunity for the vociferous faction (and fraction) of people in Orange county, who have been claiming that the diversion of water on the debris cone of the upper Santa Ana river injures Orange county," Cuttle said, "to now tell the people of Orange county just how the diversion of this water, which would otherwise be lost into the Pacific ocean, can possibly injure Orange county or lessen its water supply."

Or, in other words, how would Orange county be benefited if 500 second feet that is being spread by the Water Conservation association were permitted to pass down the river to Orange county and flow into the ocean, in addition to the 500 second feet that is now passing Chapman avenue bridge in Orange county and wasting into the ocean?

"Incidentally, it also vindicates the judgment of the water company people of Orange county in co-operating in the work of water conservation on the upper Santa Ana cone, as this will insure a better flow to Orange county during the summer season through the return irrigation water, and relieving the irrigation interests in the upper counties of pumping from underground sources, which would naturally flow to Orange county."

"Additional water is being turned out as fast as it can be distributed through the new laterals, in which concrete diversion boxes are now being built."

The Public Forum

Communications under this heading must be signed by the name of the writer. These communications express the opinions of the writers of them. The opinions may or may not be the opinions of The Register.

Editor, The Register.

Sir: The greatest obstacle to public understanding of the real causes of our industrial and business troubles is the attitude of some of our officials in our public institutions, who suppress so far as possible all discussion of the fundamentals of our economic system that make inevitable such conditions as now obtain. Therefore, will you be so gracious to publish the following letter of vital public interest—that the taxpayers of Orange county may learn some of the facts about conditions which prevail in some of our Public Institutions?

The National Recovery Administration has clearly indicated—that man and wife should not be employed on the same job, yet at the County Farm and Hospital there are several couples—who are employed there for years, whose names I am inclosing herewith, but not for publication. One of these has no property in this county, but owns a home in another county and also property in still another county.

Naturally, we like to think that Dr. Zaiser is running the place to the best interests of the taxpayers. Therefore, for the sake of public decency and social betterment, why not obey and follow the NRA rule and relieve these wives and give other families a chance—who are taxpayers and voters of Orange county, who are justly entitled to get a job in our County Farm and Hospital?

In conclusion, I wish to point out also that at the County Farm and Hospital they take your application for work; but when a place is vacant they will not call any of the unfortunate people on the list, but put an ad in the paper, and if you do not have the money to buy the paper, then you are out of luck to secure the job.

The writer firmly maintains that if our public institutions would employ only the head of a family, that would give other families a job, and not be depending, therefore, on the taxpayers for help.

Most cordially yours,
H. L. CHANDLER.

S. A. MERCHANTS TRAFFIC CHECK PLAN PROGRAM WILL BE MADE OF ACTIVITIES THROUGH STATE

Members of the board of directors of the Santa Ana Merchants association today were busy preparing a full program of activities for merchants during the ensuing year, which will be discussed at the annual membership meeting to be held January 24, at 6:30 p. m., in James' cafe.

Jerry Hall will be in charge of the meeting, and principal speakers will be men who are identified with the business activities of Southern California. It was announced. The talk will be brief, but the subjects discussed will be of interest to every merchant in Santa Ana, it was stated.

Reservations for the meeting can be made through Gilbert P. Campbell, treasurer of the association, at 213 North Main street. A. Cavalli, manager of the association, said.

Activities of the association in 1934 will be along the same lines carried on since its inception in May, 1932, Cavalli said, and will include concentrated work on promotional, educational, better business activities and closer co-operation.

Work also will be concentrated on enforcement of ordinances, state laws such as selling below cost and on price cutting, it was stated.

The association now has a membership of 150, according to Walter Swanger, president, and is steadily growing. He pointed out that within 30 days 10 renewals and new memberships have been added.

"Directors of the association feel that they have done a good job," he said, "in the community. They have warranted the support of the merchants. They are here to stay. The association will carry on without any other affiliations. Many successful events have been staged since the inception of the Merchants association, among them the Dollar Days."

Five new directors will be nominated by a special committee, and these names, with a group of 19 others submitted to the membership for voting at the annual meeting. Following the election, the directors will meet to name officers who will serve until July 13.

"This association," Campbell, director and treasurer, said, "is controlled by the merchants of Santa Ana, and it is their institution. It is strictly a merchants' association in every sense of the word. The Merchants association is not affiliated with any other organization. It is independent. It is hoped that the entire membership will attend the annual meeting, at which time they will have opportunity to express themselves freely."

HIGHWAYS CLOSED IN STORM AREAS

In order to save the general motoring public delay and inconvenience, the following damage to roads and bridges as a result of the record rainstorm is given. Motorists are being urged to proceed with caution on all routes until they have ascertained conditions.

Dark canyon road is closed between Cahuenga Pass and First National Studios in Burbank due to bridge over Los Angeles river washed out; Riverside Drive is closed between Los Feliz Boulevard and Grand Central Airport in Glendale due to bridge over Los Angeles River washed out; Garvey avenue is closed between Monterey Park and El Monte due to bridge over the Alhambra wash being washed out, traffic being routed over Valley boulevard.

Motorists should use East Third street and Beverly boulevard to reach Whittier, reports the club. The State street bridge is the only bridge not damaged between Long Beach and San Pedro. East Anaheim road has been closed due to bridge over San Gabriel river washed out.

Landslides have closed the Mount Wilson road; Topanga Canyon road between Topanga Beach and Glendale; the old Ridge Route, the San Gabriel road, it is reported.

The only roads closed in Orange county are Ocean avenue west of Santa Ana across the Santa Ana river and Bolsa road across the Santa Ana river; because in both cases, there is no bridge. When water has receded, travel can be resumed.

Want To Look Young?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sal-low complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.—Adv.

"SON OF A SAILOR" OPENS HERE TODAY

Joe E. Brown's big picture, "Son of a Sailor," comes today to the Broadway theater, to run through-out the remainder of the week.

The picture is probably one of the most lavish comedies the star has made. He plays the part of a mob who continually brags about his social life while ashore and his association with the "big shots" of the navy.

Then suddenly, all the things he has lied about come true and he finds himself in more hot water than he can handle. Johnny Mack Brown has an important role, that of a young officer, who manages to steal Joe's best girl, but the "knave of the Navy" retaliates by stealing the glory of the picture.

Frank McHugh, Jean Muir and Thelma Todd all have big parts in the cast. A cartoon, news reel, and a novelty number are added features on the week-end entertainment program.

LOU SMITH WANTS L. A. TRACK

By BILL CORUM
(I. N. S. Sports Writer)

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 4.—(UP)—A famous old Mormon city may seem a strange place from which to write a Broadway column about Los Angeles, Hollywood, Beverly Hills and environs, but as regular readers of this space know anything can happen here. And usually does. So if Louis Schol, the New York Journal's popular Broadway commentator, was riding east today with Columbia university's victorious football team, he might pause at this point to tell you.

The Jack Dempsey's are pricing perambulators . . . Mrs. Dempsey, the former Hannah Williams, and her well known husband will join the Columbia team in Chicago and ride to New York with it on the Lions' special train as the guests of Coach and Mrs. Lou Little.

Ray Long, former editor of Cosmopolitan, is working with Winfield Sheehan on the Fox lot, where he is as full of enthusiasm, ideas and good humor as always. . . professional football moguls and coaches who flocked to San Francisco to see the West beat the East in the annual Shrine game at Kezar stadium are engaging in a merry battle for the services of George Sauer, of Nebraska, sweetest back of the season.

Lee Tracy, who failed to conquer Mexico, had better luck with Boston. He relieved Sam Boston, New York betting commissioner, of 4 G's when Columbia conquered Stanford. Tracy, a great favorite in Hollywood, will soon be back in the good graces of the motion picture czars, including Will Hays, the No. 1 czar.

CHICAGO BEARS OFF FOR PACIFIC COAST

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—(UP)—The Chicago Bears, National professional football champions, left today for an exhibition tour of five games in Texas and California.

The itinerary includes: Jan. 14, at Los Angeles; Jan. 21, at San Francisco; Jan. 28, at Los Angeles; Feb. 4, at San Diego.

AL SIMMONS SIGNS TWO-YEAR CONTRACT

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—(UP)—Al Simmons, Chicago White Sox outfielder, is the first high-priced baseball star to have his salary slashed for 1934.

Although Simmons received a salary cut of about $5000, he won a point by getting a two-year document. Simmons' 1934 and 1935 contract is said to call for a total of $55,000, or $27,500 per season. He worked last season for $33,333.

BRONCO-GAEL PEACE PACT TO BE SIGNED

SANTA CLARA, Jan. 4.—(UP)—Officials of Santa Clara university and St. Mary's college reportedly conferred here on a plan for resumption of athletic relations between the two schools. The schools split over charges made after the annual football game last November.

Cards, Bears Plan Unique Twin Bill

BERKELEY, Jan. 4.—California and Stanford go in "cabots" this week-end to take on two college basketball teams from the state of Utah in the first varsity "double-header" games to be played in San Francisco this season.

The unique series will be played Friday and Saturday, at the San Francisco Civic auditorium, according to the following schedule: Friday, 7:30 p. m., Stanford vs. Utah Argles, followed by California vs. University of Utah.

A triple tie for the second-half championship of the Community Church Basketball league loomed as a virtual certainty today because of the First Christians' entirely unexpected defeat by the Latter Day Saints, 24-23, at the Y. M. C. A. last night.

Safely past their greatest obstacle with last week's victory over the First Methodists, the Christians entered their game with the Mormons a decisive favorite to clinch the title. As a result of their one-point upset, three teams are now in line for the streamer—the First Methodists, First Christians and Mormons.

Forward "Cotton" Bennett, captain of the Christians, protested the important game on the grounds of loose officiating, but it was indicated by Ralph Smedley, Y. M. C. A. secretary, that the appeal would be dismissed.

The second-half schedule does not end until January 12, but it is virtually certain that the three strongest teams now in the lead will not drop another contest, since they do not meet each other a second time. League officials will gather at the "Y" next week to draw up a third round and tentative arrangements for the second-half playoff.

Strengthened by the return of Orr Schuchardt, former jayvee forward, the Mormons held an edge over the Christians most of the game. They led at the half, 12-10.

The Christians were minus the services of Vernon Valentine, guard, and did not click as well as they did in defeating the First Methodists, first-half champions, 22-23 last week.

Failure of M. E. South, '32 champion, to report for the second game resulted in a 2-0 forfeit for Costa Mesa Federated, and showed the Mesians into fourth position with a percentage of .600.

STRUB-ROACH TRACK PERMIT EXPECTED

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 4.—(INS)—The California racing commission was scheduled to meet here today to consider two horse racing permits, one for San Francisco and another for Los Angeles.

Dr. Charles H. Strub and Hal Roach have petitioned for the first Los Angeles license. Their plans call for the building of a track on the Santa Anita ranch.

William P. Kyne, noted San Francisco sportsman, seeks a permit for a track in San Mateo county at a cost of $250,000.

John A. McNaughton and Carleton Burke, chairman, were enroute here from Los Angeles to meet the third member of the commission, William P. Roth of San Francisco.

According to reports, Strub and Roach will join Lou Smith, manager of a track at Houston, Tex., and Salmen, N. H., in building the Los Angeles track.

BOTTOMLEY MAY BE PEDDLED TO BRAVES

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(INS)—Larry McPhail, new president of the Cincinnati ball club, is in town today trying to arrange a trade or two to bolster the Reds.

McPhail held a pow wow with Judge Emil Fuchs, owner of the Boston Braves. McPhail offered First Baseman Jim Bottomley in exchange for First Baseman Baxter Jordan and Third Baseman Dick Gyselman.

GRIFFITH TO PLAY IN L. A. PRO GAME

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4.—(UP)—Homer Griffith, quarterback and fullback on the Southern California football team last season, will join the professional ranks Jan. 14 when he plays with Ernie Pinckert's all-stars against the Chicago Bears at Wrigley field.

SMILES IN SPORTS

The Irish were playing Stanford, and Ernie Nevers was plowing through Notre Dame's forward wall with ease. Try as they might, the Ramblers couldn't stop the Sierra Slayer.

Time after time the Irish were pushed back, and they commenced to look for signs of reinforcements sent in by Knute Rockne. But no relief came until they were on their own 10-yard line.

Adam Walsh looked Rockne-ward and saw big McMahon, a lineman who stuttered when he got excited, warming up. When he reported to the referee, Walsh called his men together and pleaded:

"Stop that next play and then McMahon can tell us what Rock thinks is wrong."

The play was stopped and the players crowded around big McMahon. "What did Rock say?" they shouted. "What's the matter? What's wrong? What'll we do?"

And as soon as McMahon got his wind, he stuttered out: "R-rock e-e-ays the t-t-trouble with you g-g-guys is—you c-c-can't stop N-n-nevers."

ACCUSES MAX BAER

Max Baer— heavyweight boxer, screen actor and night-club entertainer—expressed himself as being "unconcerned" by the news that Bee Starr (below), circus aerialist, planned to sue him for $250,000 on a breach of promise charge. Baer claimed he never had heard of Miss Starr.

JEFFERS, ROUX HISER QUALIFY FOR L. A. OPEN

Ninety new names, including those of Dallas Jeffers, Harold Hiser and Art Roux of Orange county, were added today to the entry list for the annual Los Angeles Open golf tournament which swings through the opening round Saturday at the Los Angeles Country Club.

The new entries qualified in preliminary 36-hole tour of six Los Angeles courses.

Jeffers, Santa Ana Country Club professional, shot 72-75 at Sunset Fields. Roux, representing the Hacienda Country club of La Habra, had exactly the same figures.

Hiser of Santa Ana's Willowick course took 76-75-101. Contestants who finished among the 30 in last year's tournament or in the 1933 U. S. Open were exempted from qualifying.

CAPISTRANO OPENS CAGE RACE FRIDAY

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Jan. 4.—(INS)—With the arrival of Ellsworth Vines today for his professional debut against Bill Tilden next Wednesday, rumors of an "open" tournament were revived.

It was reported that the U. S. Lawn Tennis association will take up the matter at its meeting next month. Walter Hall, president of the association, today said he would not be adverse to such a tournament.

SANTA CLARA-UTAH GRID GAME LIKELY

SANTA CLARA, Jan. 4.—(INS)—Sam Dunne, athletic manager of Santa Clara university, revealed today that he was awaiting a reply from Coach Ike Armstrong of the University of Utah football team regarding a possible meeting on the gridiron in 1934 between Utah and Santa Clara.

"We have offered Armstrong several dates," said Dunne. "We understand he wants to play us and believes the game will be arranged when the Rocky Mountain conference schedule has been completed."

Redlands To Meet Two Teams Friday

REDLANDS, Jan. 4.—University of Redlands hoopers open their pre-conference season casaba activities here Friday night when they tangle with the Hollywood Y. M. C. A. quintet and Bill Lee's Compton cagers.

REVEAL RUTH'S $50,000 'FRONT' AS SPORT HERO

By DAVIS J. WALSH
(I. N. S. Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—A man by the name of Babe Ruth, who made $50,000 three years ago and $75,000 the year after that, and $52,000 last year, stood around in a gymnasium with his paunch hanging over a pair of 1912 model bathing trunks and told the assembled press boys that he hoped the Yankees wouldn't cut his salary too much this time. He also told them that he wanted to manage a club next year. But he didn't tell the real story.

The story of Ruth is that baseball is getting ready now to pay him exactly what he is worth to it and, like the man in the story, he can't afford to work for that.

As a ball player and private show to any yokel who happens to spot him on the street, he is forced to live at the rate of $50,000 a year and perhaps more. As a retired athlete, no longer a man who hits the headlines or a curio for those who stand and gape, his living expenses might be cut in half.

Fame Bankrupts Babe

But he neither wants to retire altogether nor to alter too greatly his mode of living. He, therefore, is getting out as an active player before it starts to find it too expensive to be a high-priced ball player.

Because he remains a curiosity even to the end, Ruth finds it necessary to spend many thousands of dollars each year that are in no manner provided for by the terms of his contract. They tell me his taxi bills alone total upward of $300 a month. When he travels with the club, he hires a drawing room for himself and Mrs. Ruth, and naturally pays the difference. At hotel, it is the sharing of one room with another player.

In the south, he rents a suite at an exclusive hotel for the family a month in advance of the team's arrival. The ball club naturally doesn't pay for that. What the club does pay, I believe, is $10 a day starting only when the training season starts. This hardly takes care of Ruth's tips. The traveling expenses—and all others—of Mrs. Ruth and his daughter throughout the southern trip are paid by the club before he starts, there is the freight bill for shipping his expensive car to Florida. After he arrives, there is the upkeep. The Southern trip, they say, usually sets him down about $2000.

Maintains Servant Staff

In the off-season and throughout the year, in fact, he maintains an expensive apartment in the Eighties with a staff of servants, quite so. Mr. Ruth does himself proud. But, except for the last two items, most of it is made necessary by the fact that he cannot eat or sleep or live as others do. If he tries it, he's liable to find himself wearing some stranger around his neck like a lavalier.

So that, as I get it, is the real story of Babe Ruth, the ball player who was unfortunate in that he once made too much money and now finds that he cannot make enough. Of course, there is the little matter of the $25,000 annuity with which, as times goes on, he'll doubtless be able to eke out an existence, so if it wasn't for one thing, maybe I could take my mind off Mr. Ruth's problem and turn my attention to something important.

The one thing that has me permanently impressed is the fact that there's no future in being a public character. He has to pay too much for privacy.

INDOOR ACES READY FOR GUN

Change sports seats to track . . . The indoor season is beginning in the snow-bound east, the outdoor campaign will be starting soon on the sunny Pacific slope. . . Critics think 1934 will be America's greatest season.

There has been some noise about Glenn Cunningham, Bill Bonthron, and Gene Venske and their coming three-way duel to break the world indoor mile and 1500-meter mark. But another guy who has filed entry in the approaching session of board meets may take the measure of the three aforementioned.

Charley Hornbostel, the slim, silent ex-bank clerk from Evansville, Ind., who, running for Indiana university last summer, set a new world mark in the 800-meter run, turning in a 1:50.9 performance.

Hornbostel, spectators and all, was the only conqueror of Glenn Cunningham outdoors last season. Although he is at his best at the half-mile, it is expected that the Hoosier Hurricane will step off the longer distances with the Cunningham-Venske-Bonthron trio when the season opens Saturday with the K. C. meet at New York.

There is every reason to believe that Venske's world indoor mile mark of 4:10 will be shattered sometime during the indoor year. With Bonthron, the great Princeton star who broke the world outdoor mile mark running second to Jack Lovelock last summer; Cunningham, the Kansas comet who beat Venske twice on the boards last winter, and Hornbostel all aiming at Venske's mark, there will be intense rivalry that will add wings to the flyers' feet.

In addition to the mile and 1500-meter events, which promise to be match races between these four boys, there will be several other races which feature hot competition.

The sprints will be closely contested. Ralph Metcalfe, brilliant Marquette negro who burned the boards last year, will again face stiff competition from Emmett Toppino, Loyola flash, and Eddie Siegel, the New York amateur runner. But Metcalfe's chief rival may come from Jesse Owens, another negro boy who flashed across the cinders last year in starting for a Cleveland, Ohio, high school.

Jesse has entered Ohio State and may run against Metcalfe as a freshman. While he has been a sensation over the longer outdoor course of 100 yards, he has yet to show in the shorter board distances of 50 and 60 meters. Being a fast starter, however, he shows promise of being as good in the short sprints as he is over the full 100 yards.

In the pole vault Keith Brown hooked the nose of the money runner, remarking, "What a fine little two-year-old!"

THE GETAWAY

Then came flight . . . not only for Barrie but for the two horses . . . in vans and railroad cars. . . pursued always by Pinkertons . . . to New York . . . then to Crown Point, Ind. by van . . . then to Chicago, changing vans again . . . getting rid of them by consignment to Trenton, N. Y.

The master stroke was the shipment of Aknahton, the ringer, right back to Maryland where the horse was stabled at Pimlico, 20 miles from the scene of the coup . . . and where's Barrie? . . . who knows?

Welly and Gunther took part in a two-hour workout in Andrews gymnasium last night. Welly was a regular guard last season, Gunther is a freshman forward from Orange where he was a teammate of Frank Kroemer, 6-4 center who looms as one of the Dons' best bets.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

by Bill Braucher

Horses Are Not Like Leopards

They found a strangely dyed horse at the Charles Town race track recently when the color started to melt away . . . and it recalled one of the greatest "ringing" coups in history, a $250,000 cleanup.

It occurred at Havre de Grace on the afternoon of Oct. 8, 1931 . . . when a first-class horse named Aknahton ran under the name of Shem, a dog . . . and won at the price of 52 to 1 . . . New York bookies paid off through the schnozzola on that one.

A "Paddy Barrie" Job

The switch was one of the most daring in the long story of the turf . . . Aknahton was three years old, a chestnut colored stallion with four white feet . . . Overnight Aknahton was changed to Shem, a two-year-old sorrel gelding with two white hind legs.

Paddy Barrie (with many aliases), master ringer of race horses, once revealed how the change was made . . . in a van on the way from New York to Maryland he worked with the two . . . not only did he have to change Aknahton to Shem, but to make it look good, he had to make over Shem into Aknahton.

Attention to Details

The trip was made at night . . . with his only light a couple of railroad lamps, he heated his pans of dye on a small stove and rubbed down the horses with it . . . he went so far as to change markings on the teeth . . . the tail of a three-year-old is heavier than a two-year-old's . . . the master ringer took care of that by plucking hairs until Aknahton's tail had the right appearance.

But how to change the stallion into a gelding? . . . Shortly before the race Barrie sent to the stable kitchen for two blocks of ice . . . effecting a temporary alteration.

Aknahton ran away from the two-year-olds . . . Jockey Lelschman, who knew nothing of the switch, said he never had been astride such a two-year-old . . . when he touched the bat to his forehead, he said, the horse almost went from under him "like an airplane" . . . and after the race, Governor Ritchie of Maryland found him.

GERMAN BOXER DENIES HITLER 'INTERFERENCE'

By WALTER DIETZEL
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—Breaking a prolonged silence on the subject of his plans, Max Schmeling, former heavyweight champion, announced today that he was sailing aboard the Bremen January 12 to meet King Levinsky in Chicago next month and characterized as "nonsense" reports that said Chancellor Hitler had forbidden the match.

The reports in question were predicated on the fact that Levinsky is a Hebrew and that the Hitler policy is Anti-Jewish.

"That's absurd," Schmeling said instantly. "Herr Hitler advised against any break with my manager, Joe Jacobs, who is Jewish, so why should he object to Levinsky?"

As Schmeling talked, he sat framed in an armchair with his pretty blonde wife and film star, Anny Ondra. They were serving tea at their palatial home in the fashionable section of Berlin and occasionally she cast an affectionate glance at the big husband who once held the greatest championship within the gift of pugilism and now was about to essay a comeback.

It was evident that the lovely Anny was quite in accord with her husband's plans and likewise with his admiration of the challenger.

"Herr Hitler is charming," she said, enthusiastically. "He complimented my films in the nicest way imaginable. He is quite an ardent film fan, I understand."

The conversation then veered back to the Chicago meeting with Levinsky.

"I feel certain I'll win," he said. "It will be my start toward another match for the championship."

Asked whether he felt that the Camera-Loughran fight at Miami might interfere with these, he said, instantly:

"Not at all. On the contrary, I think it will re-open the field considerably, since I regard Camera as an almost certain winner over L

WASHINGTON
By George Duane

UNSTINTED

Continued relief for the millions who still are jobless and desperately in need of food and shelter confronts Congress.

Private charts of the government statisticians anticipate that the full effects of the $300,000,000 tossed into public works will not begin showing real results until June or July. In the meantime the appropriation with which Harry Hopkins put 4,000,000 men and women in made jobs runs dry in February.

And the budget is more dangerously unbalanced today than it was a year ago.

If Hopkins has his way—and he seems to be the man of the hour—Uncle Sam will keep on doling out food and money and other necessities until a little sunshine shows over the horizon.

He hopes to high heaven it won't cost as much this year as last, but he is quite positive that the belief that every man, woman and child is entitled to the right to live.

Hopkins feels the Federal government is best equipped to continue relief work, direct and indirect. This sounds like a continuation of Civil Works and Emergency Relief without stint.

UNEMPLOYABLES

But there is one angle of relief that Hopkins believes should be shouldered squarely on the community in exchange for everything it is getting from Washington.

That is care for the unemployed. Every village, town and city has its quota of men and women who won't work, or those who can't because of infirmities, and those who have reached old age and seen their life savings swept away.

If the states, counties and municipalities will tackle this group—and give what help they can as now on general relief—Hopkins is ready to go to bat right through the spring.

President Roosevelt informally indicated the other day that his views were exactly similar.

Discussing the budget, the executive said our social and economic welfare was of greater immediate importance than making two parallel columns of figures total up evenly.

Inasmuch as every local seems to need aid of some sort, Congress ought to be quite exuberant in adopting any administration recommendations—even though they run into sizable money.

REVENUE

That threatened census of men and women put back to work as a result of the Blue Eagle's code has been a little delayed but still is forthcoming.

After the Census Bureau once finished its work and sent it to General Johnson, he returned it to be broken down even further before it was laid on the President's desk. Statistical scouts report that $61,000 concerns reported—that's a fair enough concern.

All those who turned in figures will be billed presently at the yearly rate of $2 for each regular employee and 50 cents for each part-timer. It test bills pull in enough. Three-fourths for Washington—one-fourth for the locality.

SILVER

As soon as Congress gets a deep breath the silverites will become loudly vocal.

Most observers believe the President's move in carrying out the London agreement and ordering newly-mined silver bought at 64 1/2 cents an ounce will tape many mouths.

Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, leader of the silver bloc, is satisfied for the time being. At some later date you may see him urging still more liberal treatment of silver. For the present he is expected to counsel a waiting policy until the full effect of Mr. Roosevelt's order has been gauged.

SIXTEEN TO ONE

Senator Wheeler of Montana appears to have inherited Pittman's aggressive mantle for the moment.

He plans to press a bill definitely placing silver and gold at a ratio of 16 ounces to 1. He resents the term "Bryanism." In preliminary arguments he has challenged anyone to refute his statement that a remonetization of silver would work wonders with agricultural prices, and says no one has come forward with refutation.

A newcomer, Senator Pope of Idaho, would back the dollar at 50 cents in gold and 50 cents in silver, whatever the market price. Pope feels an inflexible ratio would only gum up the works. He argues that under his plan, the price of gold and silver might fluctuate, the amount in the dollar would be varied to maintain a stable and constant price level.

This is a variation of the commodity dollar. The committee for the nation (backing inflation) proposed a similar move, except their dollar would be 75 cents gold and 75 cents silver.

CASE

Inside legal opinion says that the Supreme court will not find the Clearing House banks liable for the losses to depositors of the Harriman National Bank. This is the expert reasoning in the private administration corridors where legal lights meet.

The Clearing House committee did say directly or indirectly that the Clearing House banks would guarantee the safety of deposits for all Harriman depositors. Even if they had said it, their statement would be without authority, since the committee was not an agent for the Clearing House banks for any such purpose.

Moreover, if the committee gave a guarantee, it would have to be shown that the depositors had relied on it and had suffered damage. This could not be shown, for the Harriman bank was probably in a better condition financially when the supposed guarantee was given than thereafter. The bank continued open only a few months after the supposed guarantee and then closed when it was ascertained that it was insolvent.

At best, the argument goes, the backing of the Clearing House committee was just the general assurance, usually given under similar conditions, that the bank would be supported in case of a run.

The presumption having been that the bank was solvent, the assurance will not be taken to mean that an insolvent bank should be supported in the event of paying its depositors when the assets of the bank, liquid and frozen, are insufficient.

You can safely expect that the case will be dismissed.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

R. F. C.

For once Jesse Jones drew a cheer from New York. That was when he went on record as definitely opposed to direct industrial loans by the R. F. C.

What encourages the boys is the conviction that Jones would not have spoken so flatly without approval from the powers above. They interpret the Jones statement as a light beam sent by the administration through the clouds of Tugwellian socialism, and Noah couldn't have been gladder to see the olive branch. They only hope that Congress will heed its master's voice on the subject.

Private New York promises of co-operation in upbuilding credit on the R. F. C. front. If the promise is performed it will get the results Washington wants without either increasing the public debt or involving the government in direct industrial management. The former point appeals to the administration, and the latter to banking and industry, so everybody ought to be happy.

RAILS

But bankers are not so happy at the implied R. F. C. refusal to bail them out of any more railroad swamps. From now on it looks as if railroad bankers and security holders will have to swim by their own efforts or sink.

The Illinois Central will mature this year running around fifty million dollars—will provide a significant test of this policy. The road has applied for an R. F. C. loan to cover half its maturing obligations on the ground that market conditions make public refunding impossible. Kuhn-Loeb has more than an academic interest in the R. F. C.'s decision, which will set a precedent for the handling of railroad problems. Illinois Central is solvent enough on a current basis, but it can't pay off fifty million without help from somewhere.

Total railroad maturities for 1934 amount to around $476,000,000, nearly half the amount represents issues of bonds already in receiverships, including $126,000,000 for the Rock Island in March and April. None of the remainder presents any serious problems if the bankers do their stuff. It seems to be up to them—not to Mr. Jones—from now on.

SECURITIES

A New York underwriting house is planning to grab the Securities Act by the horns. Its idea is to handle a number of issues and frankly label them speculations. It figures it cannot be called for representation if the issues fail to shine. There may not be enough speculators left in the world to make distribution on these terms possible.

BOND POOL

The famous New York bond pool headed by the Morgans has at last been fully liquidated. Its managers showed unusual skill in getting rid of their holdings without exerting pressure on the market.

All those who turned in figures will be billed presently at the yearly rate of $2 for each regular employee and 50 cents for each part-timer. It test bills pull in enough. Three-fourths for Washington—one-fourth for the locality.

STOCK EXCHANGE

The Stock Exchange is developing some litters as congressional regulation comes closer. Authorities are as usual as a man walking on eggs about Christmas and bonuses. Even the most innocuous presents virtually had to be approved by all the officials in writing.

One firm wanted to stage a Christmas party in its office, and got permission from the only committee member it could reach. The next day the Exchange tried to revoke the approval after the party had started, but the host flatly declined to give his guests the gate, and the authorities finally conceded it was probably harmless.

One form of regulation in sight is the separation of houses that trade for their own account from those that do a straight commission business. The commission firms expect to read customers who didn't realize their own brokers might be operating against them. The trading firms will probably keep big-time speculative business, which likes to be on the inside or to think that it is.

TAXES

Local conservatives have a slant of their own on the taxation of large incomes which they think Washington ought to consider. They have figures to show that the 20 per cent bracket amounted to less than $150,000,000 last year. They claim that the relatively small sum thus collected would mostly have gone otherwise to hospitals, colleges and charitable institutions, many of which are on the verge of starvation from lack of support. They insist that the government is adding to its own relief burden out of proportion to the revenue it gets from large incomes.

They also contend that the capitalists are not going to risk business ventures if most of their prospective profits are certain to be eaten up by taxes. They maintain this will breed industrial stagnation by killing the incentive for the production of more wealth and more jobs. They believe a maximum tax of 20 per cent on the largest incomes would bring the best results for recovery.

SIDELIGHTS

Wall Street bears rumors that it will have a few defenders on the floor of Congress. It hardly seems possible. Archie Roosevelt—son of F. R.—will continue in the municipal bond business with the firm of Roosevelt and Weigold.

NEW OFFICERS SELECTED FOR CHURCH BOARD

ORANGE, Jan. 4.—Over 200 persons attended the opening of church night program at the First Methodist church last night. R. C. Patton, president and introduced the speaker of the evening O. W. E. Cook of the department of international relations and political science of the University of Southern California.

Dr. Cook of the department of international relations and political science of the University of Southern California, following a 3:30 o'clock dinner served in the Epworth hall under the supervision of Mrs. J. R. Kenyon.

The meetings, which are to continue on Wednesdays for the coming five weeks, will be devoted to the discussion of "Jesus and Social Reconstruction." Dr. Cook traced the trend of the times toward peace and told of the futility of expecting progress of any sort as the result of war which, he said, destroyed not only property and lives but the moral and spiritual growth of the nations involved as well.

Dr. Cook spoke of the war at a time when it is ever present in Europe and to which its people have become accustomed. America, he declared, is not accustomed to the idea of war, which to Europe is just another fight for territory, a settling of old scores or a fight for trade.

Wilson which he declared some day would be realized.

One of the many startling statements made by the speaker was that the World war might have ended two years before it did but for the insistence of the munition makers that it be continued for their profit. He decried the activity of the church in the World war and pointed out that the Methodists have asked to be regarded in the future as the Quakers in regard to war and that this is a great advance toward peace.

America, said Dr. Cook, put 50 billions of dollars in the World war when the total wealth of the nation is estimated at but 250 billions. The war eventually will cost the nation 100 billions, he said.

"The boys in Flanders field," said the speaker, "are followers of the meek and lowly Christ and out of their deaths will follow regeneration for the world. The World war was unnecessary only as it looked after Morgan's interests in Europe. Why is it we need to be taught that we cannot get from war the things we can only get from peace?"

"Schools are the bulwark of the conservatives, not because of the teachers or students but because of the school boards you elect. I was not taught in school that there were so many scoundrels in high places. Students are not taught that enormous sums are wasted in wars."

Dr. Cook outlined the place of the church in the social structure of the nation, making its change during the past year from a rural standing to the place it now occupies. He declared that the nation was in the course of a social revolution and said that the present epoch began with the beginning of the industrial age.

Harold Gilton sang two solos at the opening of the meeting and Mrs. A. Haven Smith was in charge of the music. Mrs. R. M. Warren was the accompanist.

CHAPTER I

"IN SICKNESS and in health...for better, for worse, till death do us part..."

The solemn words fell into the stained glass hush of church on a warm September afternoon. Mrs. Pettingill, who had known Gypsy Morell since childhood, sniffed and wiped her eyes quite openly. Mrs. Pettingill always cried at weddings. There was something... she didn't know... sad about them. Even when the bride was young and slim and lovely and pliant, as was Gypsy, who lived up to her name, from her crown of alive, curling brown hair to the soles of her dancing feet.

It was over now. Gypsy and Tom Weaver, the bridegroom, tall and fair-haired and grave, were turning away from the altar. The little church was filled to overflowing. Everybody craned necks to smile at the pair. Gypsy's dress, Mrs. Pettingill said to herself, mournfully, was "real sweet." No one would suspect she had made it herself, from a Paris pattern. It was demure, high-necked and full-skirted. She could wear it, later, as a dinner dress... trust Gypsy to think of that. Her veil was of tulle, fine and soft and billowy, but the cap that crowned it was of old, rare lace. Gypsy's great-grandmother, a delicate, aristocratic French girl who had married a seagoing Morell in 1851, had brought it with her to the little New Jersey town.

Tom Weaver was real good-looking, reflected Mrs. Pettingill, solemnly, putting her handkerchief away and preparing to follow the newly married pair to the vestry, where they would see their friends. She had been invited to the church, of course, but only a few people beside "the immediate family" would go on to the Morell house, a big, shabby, rambling frame structure on Upper Dean Street. Mrs. Morell was "poorly" and there would be no reception, as such. Tom and Gypsy would slip away, later, in the shining little two-seated car which was Gypsy's wedding present from her bridegroom. Dear knows why. Mrs. Pettingill muttered to herself. They were going to live in New York City, the young Weavers. It was expensive to keep a car there, ruinously so. What the good lady did not know (and she knew almost everything of interest that had happened in Blue Hills) was that Tom and Gypsy intended to leave the car at "Mother's," using it only for week-ends.

IT WAS strange, but everybody seemed to say the same thing. "Congratulations! You looked just lovely... never saw a prettier bride." Gypsy stood, looking small and childlike, at Tom Weaver's side. Her smile was good to see. She was 22, gay, buoyant, gallant. Tom, some people said to each other, was a lucky fellow. Tom's people sniffed and said Gypsy was the lucky one.

Mrs. Pettingill pumped the bridegroom's hand and kissed Gypsy with the thoroughness she bestowed on everything she did.

"I hope you'll be as happy as Mr. Pettingill and I have always been," she said, sentimentally. She beamed at them from behind her strong glasses. She was always one for young folks, she told herself. They gave you hope... something to go on. It was a pity she and Henry never had children. Gypsy was almost like one of her own, though, living across the street, as she did. Why, from the time she was that high... Mrs. Pettingill measured the space half-way up the umbrella she carried... Gypsy had been in and out of her house as if it were her own.

She went on, smiling and sighing, nodding to the neighbors. Gypsy saw everyone, had a word for them all. The dressmaker who had made her mother's beige crepe. The children from the nursery school in Upper Dean Street, where she had taught last year. All her mother's old friends. Then the young ones clustered around. Sue and the Blake twins, Margie and Tip and Jack Ferris and all the others. It was fun. Gypsy was enjoying her own wedding.

"All right, darling," Tom thought they ought to go now. The ice cream would be melting in the dishes up at her mother's house. How odd that she should think of home in those terms already—well, she was a wife, and she would have an establishment of her own very soon, her own chairs and tables and books and beds. It was a thrilling thought.

They ran through aisles of laughing people to the taxi which stood waiting. One of the station taxis. The driver was a ruddy-faced man who had known Gypsy since he had driven her to dancing school at the age of 10.

"Wish you luck," the man murmured, shamefacedly, slamming the door after them. Tip and Jack threw rice. The last Gypsy saw of them all was a sea of smiling faces. Then she was alone with Tom. "Darling, darling!" He turned her hand about, so, and put a kiss into the upturned palm. Dear Tom, how serious he was about all this! Gypsy's face was bright with smiles, her eyes fairly danced.

"Wasn't it all beautiful? Didn't it go well?" she exulted, settling herself into the curve of his arm. "I suppose it would have been better, as you suggested, to slip away and be married quietly... just ourselves. But this was fun, wasn't it? The church... and all the old friends, and everything."

TOM stopped all this chatter in the most sensible possible way, with a kiss. It was like Gypsy to rattle on in this excitable fashion. Privately, he thought that while the ceremony itself had been memorably beautiful, it was dreadful to have all those hordes of people gaping and sighing over one. Now they would have an hour... maybe two hours... of handshaking and embracing, before he and his wife (how strange the word sounded!) could slip away quietly together.

The porch of the gabled brown house had been made brave with flowers... hydrangeas in tubs, some red roses. But nothing, Gypsy thought, with a quick sigh and frown from the intrusion of this thought on the perfection of the afternoon, nothing could hide the shabbiness of the old basket chairs, nor disguise the fact that paint was peeling from pillar and ceiling. Father had wanted to have the house painted for the wedding—darling Father! But of course, he hadn't been able to manage it. It was just one of those daydreams in which the happy-go-lucky Morells occasionally indulged themselves. SOME DAY WE'LL HAVE THE HOUSE PAINTED was the name of that particular dream.

As if it mattered, cried Gypsy to herself, rushing up the steps... as if anything mattered on this day of days, her wedding day!

Clytie, the colored woman who had cooked and scrubbed and nursed the Morells for some 20-odd years, ever since Gypsy's adorable and turbulent babyhood, appeared in the doorway. Clytie had a new pale green uniform, but her apron straps were crooked and her cap awry, as usual. Not even Gypsy's wedding day could make Clytie completely tidy. She rolled her eyes at them both in welcome as she swung the screen door wide.

"Bes' wishes, Mis' Gypsy," she cried sonorously. "Congratulations, Miss Weaver."

In three minutes the old house was buzzing with noise and excitement. Gypsy, her veil tossed back, stood to cut the huge cake, of Clytie's baking, at a dining room table heavy with embroidery and yellowed lace. Mrs. Morell, a slender, melancholy lady in her early 50's, with the resigned expression of the chronic invalid, watched her only daughter anxiously. Gypsy was "so flighty," all the relatives said. Maybe marriage would "settle her," although in 1932 marriage wasn't any too likely to achieve such results. And she was young to marry—22. Mrs. Morell herself had been 28 at the time of her own marriage, and 30 at the time of Gypsy's birth. Later—eight years later—had come the twins, Bertram and Beatrice. Mrs. Morell said to herself she'd never been really well since. But Gypsy—well, marriage would be different for her. Girls nowadays took it in their stride, Gypsy—fancy that!—was going to keep her job. She taught in a settlement house over in New York City. Her mother wondered gloomily just how long that state of affairs would last. Gypsy was such a child about everything, such an optimist. She thought it would be a lark to manage home, husband and job as well. "A lot she knows," murmured Mrs. Morell, darkly to herself.

THE slices, dark and rich, fell away under her daughter's knife. "Mummy! The first for Mummy!" Mrs. Morell came alive, smiling and sighing. Why, she was just a baby. She thought life was all roses and sunshine.

The shadows lengthened outside. Upstairs, in the big corner bedroom, Gypsy was folding her wedding dress into its tissue and slipping into the beige tweeds which were her traveling costume.

"My dear, it's simply stunning!" This was Sue Canavan, her bridesmaid. Sue, still in the delphinium blue chiffon which brought out the color of her own long-lashed eyes. Sue after a long hunt found her gloves for her, her hat, her printed linen handkerchief. Beatrice, the 14-year-old twin, all arms and legs and tawny hair, worn in a Janet Gaynor bob, sat cross-legged on the bed.

"Bee, you're not a scrap of help," Sue flung at her in exasperation. "You're like a Chinese idol, sitting there and staring."

Beatrice rolled over on the bed and regarded the ceiling with bored eyes.

"When you've been around this place as long as I have," she said, between yawns, "you'll find nothing is ever in its proper place. Gypsy's kennel has always been a mess..." She grinned ingratiatingly at her sister.

"Wait till I get at it, day after tomorrow," she exulted. "I'm going to paint the woodwork and Tip is going to put up shelves for my books... I'll get new curtains, green theatrical gauze, I think..."

"Ghou!" Gypsy, touching her mouth quite unnecessarily with lipstick, turned away from the mirror. "She can't wait to get me out, before she moves in!"

Just the same, when the time came to go, the sisters clung to each other. The younger gulped back a sob hardly, essaying an air of casualness which didn't quite come off.

"Honest, Gyp, we'll miss you. I don't know how Mums..." She winked away a bright drop or two and said briskly: "Well, for crying out loud, if this isn't a fine way to speed the happy pair! I'll be mumbly in my beard, first thing you know."

"Bee, Bee, such dreadful slang," mourned Mrs. Morell, primly.

"So out of date, too," crowed Sue, glad of anything to break the tension of the moment.

There were more embraces, more handshakings, a few tears, and then the young Weavers got into the bright and shining little car which Tip Barrington, Tom's best friend, had toolled around from the garage.

"So long... Toodle-oo... we'll be seein' you. Don't forget to send a postcard. Goodbye, darling..."

Harvey Morell, long-legged, dark-haired, with quizzical wrinkles at the corners of his fine eyes, took his wife's arm.

"Well, Louise, that's over. Makes a fellow feel a bit long in the tooth, eh?"

Mrs. Morell was frankly wiping her eyes. Her daughter was gone... of course, she still had Bert and Bee, but the house wouldn't be the same without Gypsy. Gypsy, flying in and out, slamming doors, running the bath water. Gypsy appearing in the doorway with an armful of blue iris. "Look what I picked up for you at the ferry tonight, Mums. Only a quarter..."

No, it would be different. Quite.

THERE was a striped red and white canopy outside St. Bartholomew's. The red carpet at the edge of the sidewalk was already dusty from the scuffling of many feet. Indoors an organ pealed sonorously. Shabby old women, who always seem to spring up like mushrooms after rain at a big city wedding, brooded morbidly around the doorway, waiting for the big moment. More than once a frock-coated young man with sleek hair came to stare impatiently through the aperture.

"The bride's late... she's late..." The murmur ran from lip to lip. The old ladies sniffed and groaned, shifting from one pre-aged a course in kindergartening in the year following her mother's convalescence) that the two girls had renewed their acquaintanceship. Lila, beautiful in furs, had rushed into the shabby brick establishment one November afternoon.

"My dear, I couldn't get away earlier. Am I late?" The other Junior Leaguers gabbled frantically. Lila had looked up to see the young secretary, neat and plain in her dark blue frock, staring at her. "My dear, isn't it... it's never Gypsy Morell!"

They had seen each other rather often, as often as Lila's heavy calendar of engagements would permit, that winter. And now Lila was being married on the same day as Gypsy. My dear, wasn't that just the most romantic thing?"

Lila wasn't thinking of Gypsy at the moment, however. She was occupied with herself, her train, her bouquet. Derek looked rather sweet, didn't he? He was rather a lad—a bit of a lamb, that boy. Yes, it was a pity he hadn't more money, but she, Lila, would soon see to it that he got more of it. That was a wife's job.

Her expression was soulful, but she was thinking of things mundane. Had Uncle Win remembered to order the champagne? Had Derek really wangled the biggest suite on the Empiric? She wanted it. She meant to travel in state. The other two times she had crossed, with Aunt Phoebe, she had had a muggy little cabin on C deck. No more of that, thank you!

"...I, Lila, take thee, Derek..." It was funny, but weddings were all exactly alike. She'd been a bridesmaid twice last season. You got bored with the ritual. Isn't it a pity there wasn't more kick to it? How solemn the clergyman sounded!

The organist crashed into the recession now. She faced about triumphantly. She knew she looked her best. That photographer had kept her standing for ages, though, the idiot. She was just a wee bit tired. She could do with a cocktail this moment.

DOWN the aisle they went. Lila kept her eyes down. She didn't believe in this beaming-bride stuff. Demureness was more her style, anyhow.

No lingering outside here, as at Gypsy's wedding. Lila and Derek ran the gauntlet of old ladies and disappeared in the maw of a shining long-limbed car. The reception was to be at Sherry's. Lobster thermidor. Curved glasses brimming with golden bubbles. High, nervous laughter. An orchestra thrumming above it all.

"Come along, sweets, let's get out of this!" That was Derek, frowning, looking at his watch. "We're riding a bit close to the wind." Lila's laughter rose higher and higher. They must come—they must all come to see them off.

She vanished, reappearing in a dark blue costume which effectively showed off her slender, rounded figure. She had a knot of green orchids for her silver fox. Her makeup was a triumph. She looked flawlessly young, sophisticated, amused.

The suite was packed to the brim with roses, with telegrams, exotic fruit in tall baskets. Derek gloomed around, hands in pockets, waiting for the signal which would call the merry-makers ashore.

"Why not come along? Why not all of you..." Lila was forgetting the occasion was her honeymoon. She wanted to make it a wholesale cruise.

At last they drifted away and the two were left to hang over the ship's edge alone.

"Happy, dearest?" Her voice was decidedly pettish. Nerves crept into it, now the excitement had died down and the audience had disappeared.

"I'm a wreck. Honestly. What a day!"

Her face was a white blur in the early dusk. He caught her hand. "We're going to make a go of it, aren't we, sweets? Not like some of these others." If you listened closely, you might have caught a note of anxiety in his voice. It was as if he pleaded for reassurance.

"What? Oh, yes, of course!" Lila hardly listened. She had gone back into the brightly lighted room now, with its lamps and flowers and drawn silk curtains. A stewardess rustled past her.

"Beg pardon, madam!" There were more telegrams, more roses, more boxes. Derek was being tiresome, Lila decided, with all his solemn talk. She didn't see any sense to it.

The engines, far below, churned into life; a whistle brayed. Silently the big boat moved away from the pier. Life was beginning for Lila and Derek.

THE ferry carrying Gypsy and Tom, in the shining little car, slipped through the warm September night.

"Look, Tom!" Their car had been the first one on the boat, so they had a splendid view of the harbor. "Look, that must be—yes, it is the Empiric. Lila's boat."

The majestic ship, a fairy cargo of twinkling lights, moved on its way. The ferry rocked a little in the wash. Tom said, lightly: "You ought to be going to London and Paris, too, instead of to a little shack on Long Island."

"Why, you great big silly!" She widened her eyes at him. "As if I didn't love Wading Hollow! As if I'd give up our two weeks there for London or Paris."

"It's crude," Tom reminded her. "It's just dunes and scrub oak and water..."

Gypsy interrupted him to say ecstatically: "...and that delicious salty smell, and sunsets on the beach, and fish fries and lying for hours in the sun and being lazy... why, I love it, and you know it."

The young husband grinned at her. He was very likable when that smile crinkled up his sunbrowned face with its crown of fair, curling hair.

"So you're satisfied, woman, are you!"

"You're darn shouting I am." It was just as well Mrs. Morell wasn't around, to hear her daughter's choice of words.

The ferry bumped into the slip and Tom drove expertly off into the downtown streets of the city. They would cross another bridge, and find one of the main arteries which led down Long Island, and they would stop when they were tired, some hours later, at a pleasant little inn they knew, half way down, for dinner. They planned to reach the beach house before midnight. There everything had been put in readiness for them by Tom's elder sister, Rosina, who had a summer place several miles away. The Wading Hollow place, cabin and some acre or so of ground, was young Mr. Weaver's sole heritage. He had come into the property some years before on the death of his maiden aunt. Gypsy had spent several weeks there, the season before, under Rosina's chaperonage, and had fallen in love with the place.

"Rose said she'd put up new curtains," Tom said, cheerfully. "You won't know the shack, it's so dressed up for you."

"If you've changed one stick or stone of it," Gypsy warned him, impressively, "I'll never speak to you again. It was perfect as it was."

Tom drove, one-handed fashion. His free arm held his small wife in its curve. They left houses behind, left the twinkling lights of villages, after their simple meal; they smelled the sweet scent of pine and salt water, of hay drying in the fields.

"Mmmmm..." That was Gypsy. "Don't you love it?"

"We're almost there."

They turned into the dirt road and bumped over it gallantly. The moon made a track on the waters just ahead.

"Home, Mrs. Weaver, ma'am."

The little house waited for them, dark and silent and welcoming.

Tom carried her over the threshold.

(To Be Continued)

NOTHING was left over for expensive private schools, in Gypsy's childhood, while Lila had of course experienced what is known as "the best" in that quarter. Lila had even had a year in Paris, when she was 19, while Gypsy's first college year had been cut short by Mother's operation. Gypsy had come home, just a trifle subdued, to keep house and manage Clytie, somewhat sketchily, and see that the twins washed behind the ears. While Lila had come out in state, had been presented at court in a train and three feathers, had learned the language of the smart world.

It was during Gypsy's year at the settlement house (she had man-

Grand Jury Returns Indictments In Morals Case

NAMES BEACH OIL WORKER IN TWO COUNTS

Named in a two count indictment returned yesterday afternoon by the Orange County grand jury K. H. Kronlund, 43, former chief gauger for the Standard Oil company at Huntington Beach was arrested in Los Angeles and lodged in jail here under $2500 bond.

Kronlund was indicted on two counts of lewd and lascivious conduct involving a 9-year-old Huntington Beach girl. He had previously been arrested on the same charges but was released by Justice of the Peace Chris P. Pann of Huntington Beach.

The indictment was filed yesterday by the grand jury after an exhaustive investigation of the two charges had been made. The inquisitorial body is said to have spent several days questioning witnesses including the girl against whom the offenses are said to have been committed, and her parents. The offenses are alleged to have been committed October 18, and March 15, 1933.

When the first complaint was filed against Kronlund he was taken in custody at Huntington Beach where he was employed. He remained in jail but a short time, according to jail attaches, who said that Standard Oil employees came to his rescue and provided $3000 bail for his release. Arrested yesterday by Deputy Sheriffs Merle Dean and Steve Duhart he is said to have told them that at present he is unemployed.

FIND GRAIN BELT FARMERS SKEPTICAL

MORE FAITH EVIDENCED BY CITY DWELLERS

By WILLIS THORNTON
Staff Correspondent

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 4.—Lean farmers in mackinaw coats and lumberjack caps stalk the windswept streets of the flour-bin of America that is the Twin-Cities. But the great mills grind on today, furnishing the flour of America at an index number ratio of 47 as compared to 48 a year ago, 33 two years ago, and a 10-year average of 44.

Processing taxes, agricultural depression, loss of foreign markets, acreage reduction—none of these things has stopped the mills from pouring out the flour that remains America's staff of life.

In fact, one big miller here will tell you that the farmer now is paying half the processing tax himself. On July 9, when the wheat processing tax became effective, Chicago May wheat was $1.10. On Nov. 15, with a 30-cent processing tax imposed, Chicago May was 15 cents a bushel lower. That means that the farmer through his lower price, was absorbing half the processing tax.

Oppose Acreage Cut

Is acreage reduction working in the wheatlands?

There is some skepticism. E. J. Grimes, chairman of the NRA Grain Exchange Code committee at Minneapolis, believes there is considerable farmer resistance to the plan, and that the acreage reductions will fall short of expectations.

He thinks the higher prices are cutting down the consumption of flour, and that most of the rise in wheat prices is due to speculative demand stirred by inflation.

There seems little doubt that many farmers who did not raise wheat before, and who therefore were not eligible for the reduction, are determined to raise it now. That, of course, tends to neutralize the reductions of others.

For instance, there is evidence that Iowa, not hitherto a great wheat state, has seeded 25 per cent more winter wheat this winter than a year ago.

While the 1933 crop, 515,000,000 bushels, was the smallest in 37 years, the carryover of old wheat is one of the largest, and the total of wheat available today (nearly a billion bushels) shows only a small shrinkage from a year ago.

Flour Demand Slumps

The mills here report a definite falling off of demand for flour since the processing tax. Some of this is due to the fact that farmers are getting their own flour ground at country grist mills instead of buying it, but there is some evidence that city consumption has also fallen.

Many wheat men will tell you, with a shake of the head, that the future of wheat still rests more on what Nature does to the 1934 crop than on all the reduction and tinkering programs.

While it is true that the NRA is vastly unpopular in the northwestern farm areas, inside the city it "has been accepted generally on faith, in the hope that it will do some good," says Carl Cummins, leader of the NRA organization in St. Paul.

There have been some 400 complaints, including the anonymous, to which no attention was paid. Not more than 20 petitions for exceptions were made.

Protest on Wages

However, the garment-making trade here now has a formal protest lodged with its permanent code authority, claiming that not enough differential in wages from the New York standard has been allowed to make up for the difference in skill and productivity between the nimble New York garment-makers and the stiff-fingered Swedes of this section.

At least 60 per cent of the code violations here were unintentional, Cummins reports. Here again it is the small business which has been most hurt, and it is the little fellows who complain that NRA has increased their costs without as yet increasing their business volume.

Big downtown stores reported increased buying power, especially at Christmas. A. D. Goldsmith, vice president of such a department store, estimates that buying power has increased 10 per cent, and that although this has not yet offset his increased costs, it will later.

Magazine Article Tells of County Avocado District

An article pointing out that more than 1800 acres of land are planted to avocados in the La Habra district in the northern part of Orange county, was published in the January issue of The Earth, Santa Fe railroad magazine, received here today.

The article pointed out that this represents about 14 per cent of the total in the state and that during the last three years this section has shipped an average of 992,000 pounds of fruit annually. The average returns were $105,000 per year, it stated.

STOP THAT COLD THE FIRST DAY!

A cold once rooted is a cold of danger! Trust to no makeshift methods. A cold, being an internal infection, calls for internal treatment. A cold also calls for a COLD remedy and not a preparation good for a number of other things as well.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is internal and direct—and it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippiness and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is inviting trouble. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any drugstore, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and accept no substitute on any pretext—Adv.

THEY "FIX THE ROOF"

The tremendous sums of money being poured into the northwest by the federal government (15 millions in North Dakota, 2 or 3 in Minnesota and 6 or 7 in Montana) are going directly into purchase of goods, not into payment of debt.

A survey by one of Dan Wallace's farm publications shows that when they got their allotment money, 71 per cent of farmers questioned planned "to fix the roof." 64 per cent planned to buy washing machines, 66 per cent had building, repairs and new equipment in mind, and 75 per cent breathlessly were awaiting this golden opportunity "to fix the porch."

Dakotas in Dire Need

B. A. Syftestad, general manager of the Farmers Union Terminal Association (a marketing agency of the Farmers' Union), told me he took a trip through the Dakotas this summer and that mile after mile of the country was bare as a floor, every trace of crops destroyed by a third successive year of drought.

"These people need clothing, paint, wire, and every kind of supplies," says Syftestad. "In the Dakotas you see hundreds of automobiles in the country without license plates, and many with the bodies stripped down so they can be drawn by horses.

"These farmers literally haven't the money to pay either licenses or gas.

Hopper Plague Menaces

"We are 100 per cent for the government's wheat program, however, and have supported it actively."

To the scourge of drought has been added the menace of a grasshopper plague for next year. The grasshopper eggs have been laid under favorable conditions throughout most of the Dakotas.

BLAMES LEGAL PROCEDURE FOR LAWLESSNESS

Comparing the highly efficient courts of Europe and Canada with the technical and slow judicial processes of this country, Judge William McKay of Los Angeles was the main speaker at the meeting of the Orange County Peace Officers association held in the Tustin K. P. hall last night.

Judge McKay, formerly with the traffic division and now a judge in the criminal and bench for experience on the bench for experience, and examples for his talk. He told of his travels to Canada and the sureness of justice in that country. He condemned American legal procedure for being so antiquated and placed the chief blame for lawlessness and crime on the disrespect that has grown up regarding justice.

Citing forward steps taken in the treatment of traffic violators, Judge McKay told of the traffic school he started for those who were unable to pay fines. He said that of the 12,000 persons who took the course since last July, not a single one has come back on another offense. He told also of the separate ward in the jail where traffic violators can be segregated from hardened criminals.

The visiting judge was introduced by Assemblyman Ted Craig of Brea. There was no entertainment program although an impromptu series of witticisms and fines by Coroner Earl Abbey caused a great deal of merriment. Chief John Stanton of Tustin was host for the evening. The next meeting will be held in Newport Beach and will be featured by an election of officers.

The New Aid in PREVENTING COLDS

VICK'S VapoRub DROPS

CLEARs HEAD QUICKLY

1934 Message:

This is just an "Old fashioned" and simple message, and may not appeal to you for that reason; however, if you like a message born of facts, then you should be interested in this.

We recommend OUR investment certificate for your 1934 investments because it is safe, perhaps old fashioned, but simple and understandable.

Safe, because the security is of the conservative old-fashioned type. When you get disturbed about how things are going in this muddled old world at this time, then it is well to stop and ponder and study what is back of your Building-Loan Investment.

What do you find? You see HOMES and families; you see Homes on streets right here in your own community, and you know that this Association holds first mortgages on those Homes. That is something that you can see, something that is solid and does not fade away over night. You see men and women coming to these homes, after a day's work; you see children at play; you see families working, striving, and saving to pay for these homes in order to provide for their happy brood. This lends further confidence to your Building-Loan investment, because your money is not only secured by the tangible asset—the property and the mortgage papers,—but by the moral obligation of these home-owners, to whom these homes are symbols of the independence on which this nation is founded. There is something human and substantial about that class of security.

JUST TWO THINGS: The functions of a good building-loan association are very simple. There is no complicated financial set-up to break down nor to be misunderstood, no dangerous straining to make more than is just and sound. The two and only functions of a real building-loan association are:

FIRST—To protect your funds, keep them safe and make them earn as much as a sound policy will warrant.

SECOND—To lend your money on conservative loans to help people own their own homes.

A real building-loan must spend ALL its time and energy for just those two purposes.

UNDERSTANDABLE: Because building-loan is so simple, so old-fashioned, and because you can see for yourself just how it operates, that's why you can understand it.

The basis of all wealth is real estate; factories, business houses, ranches, and above all HOMES. We all admit that real estate values have gone down. But what about that? We have just said that real estate is the basis of all wealth, and has been since civilization began, and we know that Homes are the best and surest kind of real estate. We admit that values may be down temporarily, but they will not be wiped out. Even the beasts of the wilderness and the birds of the air have an inclination or instinct to provide a nest for their offspring; then why should it not be the paramount thought of mankind to provide shelter and protection for himself and his family. Mankind has had a habit of living in homes for thousands of years, and that custom and habit will not change; people will continue to work, slave, and if necessary fight for homes. That's the kind of security that your building-loan investment is built and based on, a group of HOMES,—the human love of HOMES,—it's an "old-fashioned" idea that dates back to Babylonian times; nevertheless it will go right on being the fundamentals of style as long as mankind exists.

If you want the old-fashioned, safe, simple and understandable investment it is well that you investigate OUR Investment Certificates. They have proved to be the most stable, consistent and profitable form of investment during the most stressful period of our national existence.

Money invested on or before January 10th bears interest from January 1st.

CHURCH CLUBS FRATERNAL

WOMEN- SOCIETY- THE HOME WEDDINGS FASHIONS HOUSEHOLD-

Couple Makes Home On San Jacinto Ranch

Nearly established in their ranch home at San Jacinto, Mr. and Mrs. Paul I. Read are receiving congratulations on their marriage, a quiet event taking place on Christmas Day in the home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Ryder in Long Beach. Mr. Read is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Read, 428 West Santa Clara avenue, Santa Ana.

The ceremony at which Miss Bernice Ryder became Mrs. Read was read at 4 o'clock in the afternoon by the Rev. Mr. Price, a retired minister of the Congregational church. Relatives and close friends comprised the guest group. Elloquent of the Christmas-tide were the bride's bridesmaids, rich in their vivid reds and greens. A short musical program preceded the entrance of the bride, who wore a smart brown traveling suit with a corsage bouquet of orchids. There were no attendants.

Wedding cake was served during the reception which followed. Mr. and Mrs. Read left shortly for Idyllwild, where they spent their honeymoon. On arriving at the ranch home in San Jacinto the young people were given a warm welcome by the bridegroom's parents and sisters, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Read and the Misses Lois and Ruth Read, who had gone there for the pleasant occasion.

Mr. Read has been located on the ranch since graduating from the University of Southern California. He attended Santa Ana Junior college after graduation from Orange Union High school. His father, W. P. Read, now a member of the teaching faculty at Frances Willard Junior High school, is a former principal of El Modena school.

The bride is a graduate of U. S. C.

Elks' Wives May Ask Guests to Enjoy Bridge Tea

At last night's meeting of the social committee for wives of members of Santa Ana lodge 794, B. P. O. E. in the home of the chairman, Mrs. A. G. Flagg, 1320 North Broadway, plans were completed for the bridge tea which wives of Elks will enjoy tomorrow afternoon in the social rooms of the clubhouse.

Mrs. Flagg, as chairman, called together the wives of presiding officers who form her committee to confer with tomorrow's hostesses, Mrs. Harold Brown and Mrs. V. L. Motry, representing the officers' wives, and Mrs. Walter Vandernast, Mrs. G. P. Campbell and Mrs. E. K. Gerhardt, of the general membership. Called into conference were Mesdames Harry D. Hyde, Robert E. Walker, Robert C. Curtis, Donald Jerome, E. R. Majors, Earl Abbey and Milburn Harvey.

One interesting decision was that guests might be included in tomorrow's party, which will begin promptly at 2 o'clock, and will feature both auction and contract bridge. The hostesses plan to give the same attention to detail that would prevail at a party in a private home, and at the refreshment hour will have a touch of charming formality in pouring tea.

After plans were completed last night, Mrs. Flagg served light refreshments before her committee and hostess group dispersed.

EAT AND GROW SLIM

Breakfast
1/2 grapefruit or
1 sliced orange, no sugar
2 thin slices dry toast
1 soft boiled egg with
1 1/2 tsp. butter
1 cup coffee with
1/4 cup hot skim milk, no sugar
but saccharine allowed
Calory total...$30.

A bride has asked my opinion on the merit of white linen damask against the modern lace cloth of doubtful authenticity, and the vogue for colored linens. It is my feeling that beautiful linen damask, like sterling silver, can never become out-moded. Were I compelled to choose between one white damask cloth costing $20 and the three or more lace and colored cloths this amount would buy, my choice would always be for the damask cloth, despite the labor it would require to keep it looking fit for all occasions.

On the other hand, if my wedding gifts and "war chest" held a quantity of the lace and colored cloths, I'd use them and be just as happy. Really, my dears, it isn't the cloth, nor particularly what you serve on it, that makes real hospitality...it's YOU, that something that you radiate towards the guest in your home. While the lace and colored cloths may not be on a par, intrinsically, with the damask cloth, you can make them measure up to my estimate of what constitutes a real gentleman.

A woman so sure of herself, so at ease, that she need not condescend to her wash woman, nor bow-low to the woman's notches above her in wealth and social position.

TODAY'S RECIPE
1 level cup flour
1 1/2 tps. baking powder
2 tps. cornstarch
4 tps. sugar
1/4 tsp. salt
1 egg, white beaten separately
1/4 cup milk
1 tps. cooking or salad oil

Method of mixing: Mix all dry ingredients and sift three times. Whip egg yolk with milk and gradually work in the sifted flour, mixing smoothly after each addition. Add the oil after the initial mixing, beat well, fold in the stiffly beaten white and the batter is ready for anything you may wish to do with it.

Peel bananas, cut in 2-inch lengths, slice in half, dip quickly into the batter and fry in hot deep fat. Sections of pineapple, previously drained and dried, can be done the same way. Zucchini, cut in match lengths, mixed with enough butter to coat well, is cooked by small spoonfuls. Canned corn may be added together with a little more flour to take up the corn moisture.

Chopped oysters, blanched in hot water, drained and added to batter, offer a new way in treating these delicious things. Try draining minced clams to be used in fritters...swish!

Have the frying kettle half full of fat, heat slowly and test for cooking heat by browning a crust of bread. If it browns nicely in 1 minute, it is hot enough for fritters.

Friday: Baked rabbit, if you like rabbit, you'll like this way of doing it.

Worth Babbit Wedded To Charming Girl From Fullerton

Extremely simple but very beautiful were the rites in the Little Church of the Flowers, Glendale, which yesterday united Miss Virginia Sherrard Chesley, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Chesley of Fullerton, and Worth Babbit, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Babbit, 325 East Walnut street, Santa Ana.

The twilight hour was chosen for the service conducted by the Rev. Graham C. Hunter, pastor of Fullerton Presbyterian church, in the presence of a few relatives and close friends of the young couple. Just preceding the 5 o'clock ceremony Miss Ruth Armstrong played a short musical program including "Ich Liebe Dich," accompaniments for soprano solos, "All For You" and "Joy," by Sally Lee Scales, and the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin as the processional.

Miss Chesley, given in marriage by her father, wore a modish suit of apple green with black fox fur trimming with which black dress accessories were in harmony. A little close fitting hat and a corsage cluster of orchids completed her effective appearance. Her sister, Miss Dorothy Chesley, also gown-ed in green, was her maid of honor while William Jeffrey assisted Mr. Babbit as best man.

Returning to Fullerton, the wedding party was complimented at a reception in the Chesley home on Malvern avenue. Bridal decorations were in evidence, and the new Mrs. Babbit cut the decorated bride's cake to be served at the refreshment hour.

Following their honeymoon trip, Mr. and Mrs. Babbit will return to this city to make their home. Mr. Babbit, a graduate of Santa Ana High school and Oregon State university, is connected with the flood control office. His bride, a graduate of Fullerton Union High school, is popular in county social circles, and announcement of her betrothal inspired a succession of delightful parties and gift showers.

CWA SIDEWALK PROJECT IN BREA LAUNCHED NEXT WEEK; POST PLAN BEFORE COUNCIL

BREA, Jan. 4.—The most important of the city projects under CWA will be launched early next week, it was stated by Mayor L. A. Hogue at last night's meeting of the city council.

The project calls for the building of new sidewalks and curbs and the reconditioning of others where needed. Lists of materials necessary for this work were submitted to dealers yesterday, and bids are expected to be returned tomorrow. The project will give employment to from 15 to 20 men until the middle of February, and when finished will provide a complete system of sidewalks for the city.

Another project approved by the state office is that of scraping the stucco of exterior walls on the city hall building, the paint of which had begun to scale. A heavier paint will be applied. This is giving work to six men and is already under way.

The council accepted the report of the audit made by R. D. Crenshaw of Santa Ana, and the books of the city treasurer, Walker C. Davis. The audit was incident to the re-opening of the Oilfields National bank in Brea, in which institution most of the city's funds are deposited.

The board also approved the new contract between the treasurer and the two Brea banks, subject to the approval of the city attorney.

Dr. Glenn Curtis, representing the building and housing committee of the Brea Post No. 181, American Legion, was present to propose a plan whereby the city assume nominal ownership of the Legion hall, which building stands on property owned by the city, occupying the southeast corner of Brea municipal park.

Tentative plans suggested, the outline of which Curtis will carry to the post at its meeting on Tuesday night, include leasing the property to the city and leasing it from the city for a period not exceeding 10 years, with the provision that the post reassume ownership at any time during the life of the lease. Provision would also be made that the upkeep of the grounds and the building would be taken over by the post, and that it be in keeping with that of the city park, which bounds it on two sides. The council was emphatic in stating that the city has no desire to become the permanent owner of the building.

Information has been received from the postoffice department by Miss Mabel Head, local postmistress, that the bid received from J. D. Price for the postoffice building lease had been officially accepted. This is a ten-year lease.

At the regular business meeting presided over by Mrs. Dan Hangerford, president, it was decided to donate $10 to the Welfare league. Mrs. Charles Newson was appointed to work with Mrs. Irene Morris in distributing clothing to needy children. An all day meeting has been planned for January 11 at the Washington grammar school at which time all women in the community who can be urged to come and aid in the mending and remodeling of the clothing collected. More clothing will be needed and anyone having either clothing or material is asked to bring them to the school on that date.

Charles Shoemaker was appointed chairman of recreation and stated that he is planning playground work for the coming summer. Mrs. L. E. Wagner was appointed as magazine chairman for the year.

Mrs. Robert Carey reported on the baby clinic, stating that Dr. Munford is to give the anti-toxin for communicable diseases at the American Legion clubhouse yesterday afternoon.

Another discussion of the grammar school reconstruction problem took place and it was decided to request the elementary school board to study the matter thoroughly, especially the various types of construction, and to hold a public meeting before further definite action is taken.

George Gordon, who drove the flat truck, on which was built the float representing last week, reported that the finished float back here Tuesday, and it attracted much attention in Fullerton, Anaheim, Santa Ana and other communities enroute.

Low Wallace, chairman of the committee which had attended the school meeting last week, reported that there seemed to be a lack of definite information on the matter, as to the requirements of new state laws, methods of financing, etc.

Mayor Hillmer said that inquiries made after the school house meeting revealed that some requirements which were there stated to be mandatory, were not so, including that of sprinklers. George Gordon and others doubted whether the present site was the best and this was given as another reason why further study is necessary.

MRS. N. M. LAUNER LUNCHEON HOSTESS

LA HABRA, Jan. 4.—Mrs. N. M. Launer entertained with a 1:30 o'clock luncheon Tuesday afternoon at her home on Whittier boulevard in honor of Miss Marjorie Warner, of Whittier. Invited guests were Mrs. Albert Launer, of Fullerton; Mrs. E. Launer, of San Gabriel; Mrs. Anna C. Launer, Mrs. R. E. Launer and Miss Warner.

Mitchell, of East Stanford avenue, Tuesday evening. The meeting opened with a 6 o'clock pot luck dinner served on small tables. Miss Winifred Schneider gave a review of a chapter from the study book on foreign missions.

After a social evening refreshments of ice cream and angel food cake were served on individual trays decorated in the holiday motif. Mrs. Barnes was presented with a number of lovely gifts.

FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

THE TINYMITES

As all the elves ran to their house, the Tynmites, quiet as a mouse, sneaked right up to a window so that they could peek inside.

"Don't bother them," said Jack Frost, "because each one is a sleepy head. I guess, by now, they've crawled into their big bunk, side by side."

"You're right," cried Windy. "Mercy me, they are as tired as tired can be. Why, one of them is snoring and it almost shakes the place."

"That's only part of what you'll hear. They'll all be snoring soon, I fear," said Jack Frost, as he peeked in, too, a smile upon his face.

"Now, kids, what do you plan to do? One of the elves told me that you are very fond of traveling." "You bet," was Goldy's reply. "We are the touring Tynmites. We dearly love to see new sights. I think it's time for us to start off on another ride."

"What on?" asked Jack Frost. "You can't fly," "Oh, yes, we can. Right through the sky," said Scouty. "Santa Claus gave us a wondrous flying sled."

"He said 'would bring a lot of fun. On it there's room for everyone. Come on, we'll go and get it now,'" And, off the Tynmites sped.

1933's QUEEREST ACCIDENTS

By Harry Barsantee

NOT long ago the newspapers told about John Holman of York, Pa., who failed in his plan to commit suicide, but died in the attempt, thus achieving his purpose anyway. Holman, who was 63, was found dead of a fractured skull in the cellar of his home, with a noose of insulated wire clutched in his hand and a box at his feet. The coroner said he believed Holman fell and struck his head while groping in the dark for a place to tie the loop.

Now when a man intent upon escaping this vale of tears can't even commit suicide without having Old Man Accident step up and slap him down before he can get the noose tied tight around his neck, what can the rest of us, who still have a hankering to live, expect?

Well, we might depend upon luck. Or toughness. Some of the oddest mishaps of 1933, as a matter of fact, were really not accidents at all, but marvelous escapes.

For instance, near Pana, Ill., an automobile nosed onto a New York Central crossing just as a passenger train traveling 70 miles an hour arrived at the same place.

The train stopped a mile down the track. The crew lifted an auto radiator and two wheels off the locomotive pilot and started back to the crossing looking for bodies. There they found the remainder of the automobile, upright, its windows and windshield unbroken, but the radiator and wheels cut off as cleanly as with a knife. Inside were Thomas Resinans and James Kirel, unscratched and unbruised, but still speechless from fright.

He dislocated his shoulder while reaching for a glass of beer.

One man was killed while attempting to commit suicide ---and that's just one of the many hard-to-believe mishaps that happened during the year

ANOTHER fortunate gentleman who admitted at the time that he would about as soon be killed as scared to death was Harold McLean, a Chicagoan.

Witnesses gasped in horror as they saw a fast traveling street car strike and run over him. With grinding brakes the car came to a stop some distance away, dragging McLean with it.

He was pinned under the trucks and extricated with difficulty. He was apparently dead, but an ambulance rushed him to the hospital. As an interne prepared to make a superficial examination McLean suddenly opened his eyes, straightened up, and announced he was all right. He was. He returned home under his own power, suffering only a few minor cuts and bruises.

Toughness honors in 1933 were carried off by four youngsters and one adult. Samuel Malbin of Cleveland gets first prize. He dropped from the fourteenth floor of a downtown hotel and suffered no more than a fractured arm. "Where's my hat?" he asked as horror-stricken bystanders picked him up.

Two-year-old Lueta Leduc of Montreal was thrown 50 feet when a passenger train roared by, cutting both handles from the wheelbarrow on which she was sitting, but she picked herself up unhurt. The 19-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Rudd of Seaside, Ore., fell out of a second-story window onto frozen ground, got up and toddled back into the house again, possibly to try the trick all over again at the next opportunity.

Arthur King, three, was struck a glancing blow by a train going a mile a minute, but was unhurt. Kenneth Davis, a 14-year-old Chicago lad, was struck by a sedan and knocked under a moving street car, but suffered only a split lip.

JACK MILLER of Carlyle, Ill., made a bid for toughness honors, but couldn't stand the pace. One morning he fell 30 feet from the municipal water tower, under construction, but was uninjured. Later in the day he slipped again, this time falling 85 feet to his death.

A Chicago youth, Leo Cassatto, was injured in a fall from the fourth story of his home. A few minutes later the car in which he was being taken to the hospital for treatment overturned in a crash with another car and he was killed.

An Illinois girl, who was using crutches because of a sprained ankle, tripped on the crutches, fell, and broke her neck.

Fellow workmen fled in all directions as John Austin, New Albany, Ind., dropped a heavy box of dynamite he was loading on a barge. The dynamite didn't explode, but the box fell on Austin's neck and broke it.

A West Virginia druggist, Dr. L. T. Ford, claims he was fated to get hurt anyway. When his sedan failed to make a turn and plunged over an embankment he crawled out of the wreckage unhurt. But in climbing up the embankment he slipped, fell upon a jagged rock, and suffered serious injuries.

In 1931 a West Virginia man was struck by a train and lost a leg. In 1932 he was hit by an automobile and lost his left eye. In 1933 he reached for his artificial leg beside his bed. His glass eye didn't register on a gun on the dresser. He knocked the gun to the floor and it discharged a bullet into his right arm. At the hospital a surgeon amputated the arm.

Major General Charles G. Morton, U. S. A., retired, who survived three wars and wore the distinguished service medal and croix de guerre, died in 1933 from a firecracker wound.

AFTER reading some of the unusual escapes related above it will be surprising to see how easily many 1933 accident victims met death.

Salvatore Stea, 48, Washington, was killed in a four-foot fall from a stone wall. Mrs. Emma Rothrock, 75, Chicago, died of injuries incurred when she tripped over a pair of overshoes. Thirteen-year-old Everett Dalglish of Ogdensburg, N. Y., died from brain concussion when his dancing partner accidentally struck him on the temple with her elbow.

A Chicago girl, Mary Freeman, toppled backward in her chair and died of the resultant injuries. A Chicagoan, Frank Williams, cut his finger while shaving and died from the infection which followed. An elderly woman of Litchfield, Ill., tripped over her kitten and fractured a hip.

Two robins attacked 14-year-old Johnny Harper and inflicted serious scalp wounds.

Animals, by the way, were responsible for a number of serio-comic accidents in 1932.

A hit-and-run dog sent W. J. Cennack, Denver, to the hospital with a fractured leg. Two robins attacked Johnny Harper, four-year-old Anderson, Ind., lad, and inflicted serious scalp wounds.

One of the strangest cases of the year occurred in Lille, France. Mme. Le Febure bought a rabbit at a market with the idea of using it for a stew. But bunny had other ideas—as well as rabies. It climbed out of the basket and chewed at madam's finger, but was poked back.

When it arrived in the kitchen it went berserk. It bit M. Le Febure, his son and two daughters, cleaned up on the dog and two cats (Copyright, 1933, by EveryWeek Magazine.)

and finally was chased into a chicken coop, where it mangled 10 hens, killed three ducks and then, apparently satisfied, it lay down and died.

Martin L. Crimins, U. S. A., retired, was bitten badly by a water moccasin just a few minutes before he was to have delivered an address on poisonous snakes at Suffern, N. Y.

THE usual number of bees flew into automobiles and caused drivers to lose control of their cars, but the experience of Costanzo Zucco of Philadelphia provides an interesting variation. Zucco stopped his car along a rural highway, picked up a turtle and drove on.

The turtle started to climb up his pants leg. Zucco got excited and forgot to keep his mind on his driving. The car crashed into a telephone pole, and driver, wife and turtle received severe but not fatal injuries.

Anti-beer forces may add the following to their propaganda file:

Thomas T. Lloyd, Petersburg, Ill., dislocated his shoulder while reaching for a glass of beer.

Louis Conti, Milwaukee, fractured his nose when, while tapping a keg of beer, the bung flew out and struck him in the face. This mishap, oddly enough, occurred in Sharpshooters Park.

Andrew A. Kirsch, Pittsburgh restaurateur, died of injuries caused by an exploding beer keg.

Brys will be boys. Jack Wilbur, Ketchikan, Alaska, was killed with a gun at his 63d birthday party while playing cowboy. J. F. Radon, 60, Oklahoma City, slipped and suffered a serious head injury while rounding third base in a sandlot baseball game.

And girls will be girls. Mrs. Cruz Martinez, 108 years old, Chicago, was burned to death when her clothing caught fire from the cigaret she was smoking.

Even the elements seem to ally themselves with the Grim Reaper. Benjamin F. Hendrix, Norfolk, Va., had his neck broken by a wave. The burning sun spread the rails and caused a train wreck in Oregon which was responsible for two deaths and nine serious injuries.

Much has been said recently of the hazards of college sports, but Lawrence Laedigs, Mascoutch, Ill., believes he is the first basketball player to be wounded in action by firearms. He was about to get back into a hotly contested game, with just five seconds to go, when the timer, who had his gun poised for the final shot, pulled the trigger. His team won, but Laedigs was lost to his team for several days because of a badly burned pair of thighs.

Incidentally, no basketball players were reported killed while playing last year, but at least 10 met death in traffic accidents while going to or from their games.

FEW motorists ever got hurt in an odder manner than did Keith Croussotte of Rock Island, Ill. His car was struck from behind by another car. The shock threw Croussotte out of his car—and the wheels of his own auto ran over him.

Frank Coduti of Chicago had an argument with his wife, lost, and decided to commit suicide. So he drove his car over the top of a 60-foot bluff. The car was wrecked; but Coduti, unhurt, crawled out and went home.

On Washington's birthday a man in the east was killed when a cherry tree which he was cutting down fell on him. Gravedigger Frank Padlo of Dickson City, Pa., fell in the grave he was digging and died.

Two women bathers in Palo Alto, Calif., were run over twice by the same car and seriously hurt. The driver backed over them as they lay on the beach sunning themselves. Frightened by their screams he drove forward—over them again.

March 18 was obviously the wrong day to let George Ryan, Oakland, Calif., sweep the chimney. He started the day by falling off his ladder. After another try he made the roof, only to fall down upon it. Hardly had he arisen, before he fell off the roof.

Disheartened? Not George. He climbed back on the roof, then promptly fell down the chimney. He became wedged, but managed to wriggle out. Then he fell off the roof again.

Officers found George, unhurt, still trying to sweep the chimney. They advised him to take a day off.

THE NEBBS—The Discoverer

YESTERDAY AMBY, WHO WAS IGNORANT OF THE FACT THAT HIS BELOVED HANNAH SHULTZ WAS GOING TO ELOPE WITH BITT, WAS SO INFORMED BY THE DEPOT AGENT AND THIS IS THE RESULT.

SAY, RUDY, IS THERE ANY TRUTH TO THE STORY THAT HANNAH SHULTZ TRIED TO RUN AWAY AND GET MARRIED TO THAT FELLER, BITT?

WELL, THE FELLER THAT TOLD ME IS TOO DUMB TO USE HIS HEAD. HE MARRIED A WOMAN WHO ENGAGED TO ME AND THEN TRIES TO RUN AWAY WITH SOMEBODY ELSE. WHY DIDN'T YOU LET HER?

OH, I GUESS I THOUGHT MAYBE IT WOULD HURT YOU AND I FIGURED THAT THIS WEAK WOMAN HAD MADE A MISTAKE. IT WASN'T BECAUSE I WANTED TO KEEP A SECRET—I'M THE MOST LIBERAL GUY ON EARTH WITH SECRETS.

WHY ASK ME? YOU MUST CONSIDER THE TRUTH OF THE STORY BY THE SOURCE FROM WHICH IT CAME.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By J. GORDON ALLARD
Certified Culbertson Teacher

During the past few weeks I have discussed briefly the subject of opening leads. The subsequent play of the hand is naturally the next thing to be considered.

Just as bidding in Contract Bridge is done in a "sign language" so in the play of the cards a sign language is used with which the adversaries may communicate with each other and issue invitations and stop orders with respect to the playing of this suit or that suit. Before one is able to bid his cards, he must understand the sign language of bidding, or "partnership language," so in the play of the cards, the adversaries must understand a sign language, or "adversaries language." If the "adversaries language" in Greek, most of you would not understand it; so in contract bridge unless you know how to talk the language and are able to interpret it, you cannot play the game as it should be played.

In the play of the cards, a helpful code has been provided which if interpreted correctly is invaluable in many situations. This code is devised to be used by both the leader and his partner. Certain plays are prescribed for the partner which mirror his holdings to the leader. Such conventional responses give definite information to the leader and when employed serve two useful purposes:

(a) Positive: They invite continuance of the suit.

(b) Negative: They invite discontinuance of the suit if leader is looking for help in the suit from his partner.

This code of defense is required to offset the advantage which declarer holds on account of cards exposed and available to him. Watch your partner's plays, and listen to the fall of the cards. He is talking across the board to you in words of one syllable.

A careful study of the following detailed explanation of the Code of the defense is highly recommended.

The lead of the fourth best and the Rule of Eleven which has been discussed in the two previous articles.

The encouraging card. And encouraging card invites partner to continue the suit. It may be recognized by the play of an apparently unnecessarily high card to partner's lead—usually the six or better.

The discouraging card, which is the exact reverse of the encouraging card and is intended to notify the leader that no tricks can be taken by the partner in the suit led. It may be identified by the play of the lowest card in the suit led—a five or lower. If you should happen to have no card as low as the five, discard your lowest and continue to do so as long as the suit is led.

The lead of the ace followed immediately by the king signifies no other card in the suit. It is important to note that when holding the A-K and others you must always open the king. Similarly, the lead of an A followed by a small card signifies a doubleton.

The discussion of the Code of Defense will be continued next week when I will discuss the Echo or High-Low, the play of the lower or top of touching honors, the lead of the top of touching honors, and signaling with discards.

SOCIETY

Church Societies

United Presbyterian
Missionary society members of the United Presbyterian church met Wednesday in the church parlors for a delightful luncheon served at noon by a hostess committee composed of Mrs. C. E. Harris, Mrs. A. J. McFadden and Mrs. E. C. Lukens. Small tables were decorated in keeping with the New Year holiday and guests dined in offering New Year resolutions as a finale to the luncheon hour.

Mrs. Will McBurney, president, conducted the business session at 1:30 o'clock and Mrs. Fred Millon led the devotional service. The program subject was "The Never-Fading Light" and was in charge of Mrs. O. S. Johnston. Miss Myra Gibson presented a fine paper on "Modern Civilization"; Mrs. Bruce Gibson spoke on "The Remedy for Paganism"; and Mrs. Johnston closed the program with a short talk on the program theme.

The thank offering committee presented a novel plan for next year's offering for next year, presenting a decorated bottle to each member in which to save a penny a day. The Boy Scouts had decorated the bottles, and received a vote of appreciation from the society.

It was announced that the School of Missions would be held each Sunday night for the next six weeks, with a place for each member of the church and a warm welcome to visitors.

A tea was announced for Wednesday, January 16, in the home of Mrs. A. J. McFadden, 1108 North Main street.

THE FIRST AVIATOR

The conflict which has been carried on for some time between the Wrights and the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, as to whom the honor belongs for first flying in the air, is destined to be settled. One Langley lifted an airplane off the earth for a few moments before the Wright Brothers made their initial flight. Langley's plane is now in the Smithsonian Institution bearing the inscription as the first airplane ever built. The Wrights have always contended that their plane was the first, and have refused to recognize the Langley flight any more than they would recognize the fabled flight of Darius Green in his flying machine.

The Wright plane is now in the Kensington Museum in England, where it is recognized as the first practical flying machine that ever ascended into the air for a real flight. So between the Wrights and the followers of Langley the conflict has been kept alive. The report now is that the Smithsonian Institution has come to recognize the claim of the Wrights.

This conflict is interesting in that it reveals that almost every great discovery has been a matter of similar conflict. In some of our most important discoveries, two different men made the discovery at about the same time. In each case quite a conflict surged around these men. It may be recalled that the discovery of man's origin from lower forms was long in dispute between Darwin and Wallace. As a matter of fact, these two men hit upon the idea almost simultaneously, and were less jealous of each other than some of their friends were.

The discovery of the telephone, which has come to mean so much in modern communication, was made by two men about the same time.—Bell and Drawbaugh. Litigation was carried on in the courts of the United States for years between the two parties. The present Bell system owes its existence to a decision of the United States Supreme court granting to Alexander Bell the patent rights by reason of prior discovery.

The process of extracting aluminum from bauxite clay was discovered about the same time by a young Oberlin graduate, Charles M. Hall, and a Frenchman. This matter also became a subject for litigation in our courts. It was at last decided in favor of Hall; and the Aluminum Company of America, which has a practical monopoly of the aluminum business in the whole world, owes its existence to that decision between contestants for the honor of discovering the process.

Another interesting fact stands out in a discussion like this. In the matters referred to, the ultimate decision enriched the inventors. But when an invention such as the well known "306," or the antitoxin for diphtheria and typhoid fever, or insulin, which retards the ravages of diabetes, is discovered, it immediately becomes the property of the whole medical profession. No one is permitted to monopolize a discovery which saves human lives. The question may be asked why a technical discovery should be any different. That a man is entitled to some reward for his discovery goes without saying. The reward of the doctor is in the honor which comes to him. Some financial reward may be due the discoverer of a great physical invention. But whether he should be permitted to lay all subsequent generations under financial tribute might well be open to question.

THE FIGHTING GOVERNOR OF PENNSYLVANIA

Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania has his fighting togs on. Never mildly belligerent, he has put the bit in his teeth for a real fight with the politicians of his party,—if, indeed, the Republican party can be called the Governor's party.

He was elected in spite of the machine of his party,—in fact, against its opposition. The machine went so far after the Governor got the nomination as to put an independent in the field against him. He has succeeded in getting much social legislation through the legislature, something which is not overdone much in Pennsylvania. He has called special sessions of the legislature from time to time, and now has called another, to consider matters of social urgency.

The Governor is looking toward the Senatorial seat occupied by the reactionary Reed; and with the looseness of party ties, even in Pennsylvania, there is much likelihood that he may displace him. He certainly has thrown a scare into the ranks of the Republican machine. With the defeat of the Vare machine in Philadelphia and of the Allegheny County machine in Pittsburgh, things are none too bright for the G. O. P. in the rock-ribbed Republican state of Pennsylvania.

The people like a fighter, and especially so when he is fighting the battle of the people. Here, then, is hoping that the fighting Governor wins out.

THE SPORT WORLD OF AMERICA

One not accustomed to scan the sport pages of the daily newspaper may be somewhat surprised to learn how varied and how multiplied are the sports of our country. A recent summing up of the champions in the sport world will reveal to such an one that there are twenty-five different sports which are nation-wide in interest.

Everybody knows about baseball. And with the recent football game, everyone knows about that sport. Tennis is well known in this region by reason of the fact that the two champions of recent years live in this region. But besides these we have the following: auto racing, basketball, bicycling, billiards, bobsleds, boxing, bowling, cross-country running, horse-racing, fencing, golf, ice hockey, motor boating, polo, ice skating, soccer, skiing, swimming, trap shooting, track and field, and wrestling. All these have their annual champions, and millions of our people follow some or all of these with breathless interest.

This is a formidable list, and it must be a surprise to some that there are so many people who have the time and the money to devote themselves to these various sports. In the light of all these sports, we can hardly say that the American people are nothing but a pack of money grubbers. They do know how to play, and they do play; and there are millions of people who people the benches and the grandstands to witness these sports.

There may be those who believe that sport is overdone. For some persons undoubtedly it is overdone. But the old adage, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," has its wider application to all people as well as to Jack. There are some of these sports which some of us would like to have dropped, but "we" are not all the people.

VICE-PRESIDENT WANTS ACTION

Vice President Garner is far from a happy man in the role in which he is cast. Returning to Washington the other day from a vacation spent in his home in Texas he said that he was fit and ready for action but he guessed there wouldn't be much action for him. "I like an active life and always have," he said. "There's not much to do now, but I guess I can't repudiate this job. It wouldn't look right."

There have been many pronouncements public and private by Vice Presidents and candidates to the office on the variance between the natural abilities of a man and the limited duties of the office. It is aggravating to be close to so much activity and not to feel oneself a functional cog in the wheel.

The situation is an inevitable circumstance, however, for the man with the responsibility must execute the duties necessary to the discharge of the responsibility.

NEWSREEL THEATER CLOSES

The first newsreel theater closed the other day. It is a happy circumstance of the unfortunate event to note that it was not closed for lack of attendance. The theater has been operating for five years in New York and showing exclusively newsreels. It was the forerunner of similar theaters in large cities throughout the world. It has been attracting between twenty and thirty thousand New Yorkers and visitors a week for the period it was open. Disagreement regarding the rent brought about the closing.

An appeal was made some time ago to the public to express their appreciation of the newsreel so as to encourage the moving picture people to continue. An attendance such as that which forms the record of this first theater devoted to the newsreel bears witness to the interest of the public in the visible news.

Forward or Backward?

San Francisco Chronicle
Is the world moving forward or backward?
It depends on which direction you think is forward.

If your vision of the future is economic collectivism, under either a Socialist or a Fascist regime, obviously the present move is toward that goal. Half the world has already arrived at it, and the other half, including America, under the NRA, is compromising with it. Whether that is forward or backward, at least it is where, for the moment, we seem headed.

But if your vision is liberty, the drift is as definitely backward. Whether economic collectivism and personal and political liberty could be made compatible, at least it has nowhere been done. To whatever extent the one has been attained, the other has been curtailed. In the countries where in name of liberty has been completely destroyed, the very ideal of liberty has vanished. It is no longer even an ideal. Discipline has taken its place. Whether it is forward or backward, most of the world is visibly moving away from liberty.

And liberty, after all, is the dearest prize mankind so far has won. It has cost all the travail, all the wars and revolutions, all the martyrdoms and sacrifices, all the ideals and aspirations of more than five thousand years of struggle. That we should enjoy it, two hundred generations of our ancestors have lived and died, has cost more than all other human achievements combined.

Whether we call them "reactionary" or "progressive," there are some permanencies. The love of liberty, until now, has been chief of these.

If the action of the rest of the world in giving it up challenges us to decision, should we at least not think twice whether the leap is forward or backward?

Hail Important Work of CCC in the Forests

Riverside Enterprise
White and sugar pine trees were in great peril in this country before the CCC got busy. The fight against the blister rust which was destroying them was losing ground. Then 15,000 civilian conservation corps men were put to work on rust elimination in 21 different states. They have eradicated carriers of the disease from a total of 574,000 acres. There is now hope for the pines.

Two authorities, S. B. Detwiler of the department of agriculture and Charles Lathrop Pack of the American Tree association, regard the work as one of the most important conservation achievements in a decade. It is to be hoped that similar attacks will be made on other tree-destroyers. Chestnut trees, elms and hickories have been hard hit by special blights. They have been nearly wiped out in some sections where they were once common.

There has been a little criticism of the CCC work from people who have not understood its activities. There can be no criticism, surely, of the excellent forest conservation work it has done, both in battling tree ailments and in facilitating forest fire prevention. Our forests are essential for so many reasons—protection of soil, shelter and feeding of wild life, the encouragement of normal rainfall and prevention of floods, provision of useful raw materials and the location of naturally beautiful playgrounds where people may forget the noise and hurry of cities. The CCC, benefiting forests, benefits people.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

THE SUBSTITUTES

When whirling snowflakes fill the air
And clothe the white with white the sea,
When everything is brown and bare
As far as one can see,
The while the pine tree bows its head
And shudders in the blast,
As one who waits in fear and dread
Till Winter shall have passed,
The dogwood berries still appear
To lend the world a touch of cheer.

The timid lilac long ago
Laid off its gay attire,
No more the gallant poppies glow
Like cups of dancing fire,
And all the shining apple trees
Far back in early May
Were ruffled by the envious breeze
Of their pink-white array.
But still the hawthorn overhead
Is clad in beads of gleaming red.

For, though we wander where we will,
By mountain, sea or shore,
We'll always find that beauty still
Is just outside the door.
The garden flowers may have gone,
But, thrusting through the snows
That stretch in drifts across the lawn
Shines the Christmas rose,
Which blooms, while Winter is a-wing
To lend the world a touch of Spring.

Kings of today are not what they used to be, but King George of the House of Hanover is still going strong. Oh, yes, and there's King Alcohol of the House of Hangover!

From a New York editorial: "Advertising won't sell a product that lacks quality." And quality won't sell a product that lacks advertising.

When a child is born with a silver spoon in his mouth it's a two-to-one bet he'll choke on it.

Rulers of nations don't say it, of course. They just think it. "We can't tear the human race down and build it over, so what's the next best thing?"

Yes, Ethel, your chance of becoming a famous musician is 32 per cent better if they can't spell your name and 58 per cent better if they can neither spell nor pronounce it.

THERE'S ONE IMPROVEMENT SINCE THE BOOM. CHILDREN ARE LESS HARSH IN TRAINING THEIR PARENTS.

To enforce the codes, however, Uncle Sam must go in for spying through keyholes. Those opposed will then sneer, "A government of the peep, for the peep and by the peep."

The wet movement finds strong support in the classics. There was Don Quixote, for example, who said, "Son Sancho, drink not water. Drink it not, son, for it will kill thee."

AMERICANS: All sorts of government aid for producers of food for the body; little or no aid for products of food for mind and soul.

Your health is better now? And why not? Thinking about yourself is what makes you sick and you can't think about yourself and the wolf at the same time.

ONE REASON FOR THE DECAY OF GOOD MANNERS IS THE FACT THAT PEOPLE HAVE LESS "COMPANY" TO ENCOURAGE SHOWING OFF.

Still, if they use bombs, germs and gases next time that won't be a war at all. Just a gigantic suicide pact!

Holders of the world's toughest jobs: Mr. Roosevelt and the man who tries to write a daily column of humor while Congress isn't in session.

But you can't muzzle the die-hards. They will now change their tune from "He's making a bad start" to "Any ham dramatist can write a good first act."

When you get that 30-per-cent raise, did it add 30 per cent to your happiness? No? Only 10 per cent, huh? Then you only got a 10 per cent raise.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By GLENN FRANK

ROOSEVELT IS NOT RADICAL YET

I am at a loss to understand the type of mind that regards Roosevelt as a radical. Certainly the recovery program to date cannot be set down as a leftward movement.

I am equally at a loss to understand the surprise that liberals and radicals express over the concurrence of so many conservative business men with the Roosevelt program.

The fact is that, broadly considered, the NRA is up the business man's alley more than it is up the radical's alley as a glance at its major achievements will indicate.

It is true that minimum wages have been established, but they have not been set high enough to give the capable producer any concern whatever.

It is true that collective bargaining has been lifted to the dignity of a national policy, but there has been a lush growth of company unions under the NRA regime, and anyway organized labor is a force for conservation rather than radicalism, even if all business men do not yet appreciate the fact.

It is true that shorter working hours have been promoted under the many NRA agreements, but if the NRA schedule had not come into the picture industry would have faced the thirty-hour week of the Black bill.

And it must not be forgotten that the easing of the anti-trust laws, now achieved, has been for years a desired goal of American business and industry.

The NRA has consciously sought to discourage strikes during the emergency—certainly not a Red move.

The NRA has moved in the direction of price fixing and production control long dreamed of by business.

And the NRA has slipped the noose around the neck of the piratical trader who has been a thorn in the side of the business world for decades.

The greatest danger involved in the present recovery program is not that it is radical, but that, unless careful thought and revision is brought to its operation, we may find the economic life of the nation a dozen years from now more completely in control of business and industry than it ever has been under the most reactionary regimes.

The developments under the NRA have been essentially conservative moves. The problem is to prevent the net results of the NRA from becoming reactionary.

Our Children

By Angelo Patri

TELEPHONE TALK

A telephone is a handy thing to have about the house. It lengthens our reach enormously. It extends the power of our voices to the ends of the earth. And like all other good things, its use can become abuse. This is especially true in the households where there are children. Nothing is easier than to lift the telephone and call a neighboring mother for a discussion of the children's deeds. It is not as right as it can be. It has many pitfalls for the unwary.

Jimmie comes in all wet and dirty. "What have you been doing to get yourself in such a mess?"

"Buddie dared me to jump across the ditch the men are digging and when I jumped he pushed me so I fell in. Then he ran away yelling, making fun of me, calling me stick in the mud. I'm not going to play with him any more."

"I should hope not. I'm just going to call his mother and tell her what I think of that boy of hers. He's forever tormenting—"

There you are with the stage all set for a neighborhood row. One mother thinks her child is fine. So does the other mother. Each protects her own with valiance and vigor. Unpleasant relations are established in the community and the playground and school. Every time that such a feeling is established about a child that child pays dearly for it. You may fight his battle with might and main but you will never win it. You will burden him with a load of opposition, that's all. He and he only, can establish himself among the children of his group. The importance of his place there becomes clear when you remember that it is likely to stay as it was fixed throughout his career.

The great difficulty with telephone communications about the children lies in the fact that we will say things over the telephone that we would not dream of saying face to face with the person concerned about the matter. There is something in the human presence that restrains us. There is another something in a telephone transmitter that inspires us to do our worst.

To begin with the shrill bell cuts into our nerves suddenly and painfully. There is always a feeling of what's coming, when the bell summons us. Before we get control of ourselves the voice at the other end has taken possession of us. Once it gets a headstart we are lost. We are in the clutches of that mysterious power that lies in the space between telephone talkers.

My experience with many, many such calls forbids me to talk over the telephone about children. With all the gentleness and tact that I can muster in emergency I beg off. "Please come in to see me about this. Please write to me about it. I'm sorry but unless I have the opportunity of talking to you personally in my office I can't talk about the children." I have learned I must do that.

And one other point. Never send a child out of school, or out of your personal care on the strength of a telephone call. Let the person who wants him come to you for him and then use your best good sense.

(Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped addressed envelope for reply.)
